Carter stops to give ride to Humphrey

by LAURENCE McQUILLAN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter, completing a three-day trip west, provided a sentimental "taxi service" from Minneapolis to Washington Sunday for aiiing Sen. Hubert Humphrey, whom he called "the greatest American that I know."

Humphrey, who had not been in Washington since doctors discovered an inoperarable cancerous tumor in his pelvic area two months ago, looked pale and thin but he was in good spirts and said, "I feel mighty fine."

The Air Force plane Carter used for the trip was the same one that carried Humphrey to Atlantic City in 1964 when Lyndon Johnson chose him as a vice presidential running mate.

Staff members and friends cried as Humphrey stepped from the plane at Andrews Air Force base and greeted them affectionately, uttering an occasional, "my gosh" as he spotted familiar faces.

CARTER, IN WHAT he said was a "small gesture" to one of Washington's most revered political figures, signed a bill naming the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare headquarters building for Humphrey.

The ceremony, conducted in Air Force One after it landed, included Vice President Walter Mondale, an early Humphrey protege.

"This is a great honor for our government," Carter said. He gave Humphrey the green pen he used to sign the bill.

DURING A BRIEF appearance with Carter in Minneapolis, Humphrey said his doctors told him "they have done as much for me as they think they can" and concluded that "getting back O Washington would be the best therapy."

Earlier Humphrey had said, "I feel like the Minnesota Gophers," a reference to the football team that upset No. 1 ranked Michigan Saturday.

Carter said he welcomed the chance to provide Humphrey a service.

"This is one of the greatest days of my life," he said. "I am here to meet the greatest American that I know and the No.1 Democrat in our country. I have missed him and I look forward to getting him back in the Senate where he is so badly needed.

"I KNOW OF no one who stands for our country more than he," Carter said. "He's a friend of mine. I'm really looking forward to having him back, bacl in his work clothes, as a staunch ally and a leader in Congress. And I'm glad I can provide taxi service."

Humphrey said his motto is: "never give in and never giv up."

His administrative assistant David Gartner said the former vice president would make his first appearance on the Senate floor on Tuesday.

Carter spent about 10 minutes in picture-taking sessions with Humphrey, his wife, Muriel, and 22 family members who gathered at the Humphrey Charter Terminal of the Minneapolis-St. Paul airport.

Humphrey has not been in Washington since he underwent an operation in August which disclosed he had an inoperable tumor in the pelvic area. He is expected to stay in tye capital 10 days to two weeks.

PRESIDENT CARTER, Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., and Humphrey's wife, Muriel, look at White House as they arrive on South Lawn Sunday. Humphrey, who has terminal cancer, hitched a ride back to the nation's capital with Carter, who was returning from a three-day tour of the West.

Panama pact vote a landslide

PANAMA CITY, Panama (UPI) — Panamanians flocked to the polls in large numbers Sunday and early returns indicated a solid "si" for the new treaties giving Panama control of the Panama Canal by the year 2000.

First returns from Panama City and two outlying provinces showed the vote running in favor of the Panama Canal treaties with the United States by a margin of more than 2-to-1.

The first figures released 90 minutes after the polls closed, gave the new treaties 2,905 "si" votes and 1,387 "no" votes.

Gen. Omar Torrijos, Panamanian head of government, told reporters he was confident of a victory for the treaties, but he declined to speculate on the margin.

"I was aware that this people was waiting for a reply with votes and not with boots, rifles or cannons," he said.

THERE APPEARED to be a large-turnout of the 800,000 eligible voters to vote "si" or "no" on the treaties, which turn over control of the canal and its adjacent zone to Panama by the year 2000 and permit the United States to intervene to guarantee its neutrality.

Fire sirens wailed across the nation at 7 a.m. to alert voters that the 12-hour polling period had begun. But many voters had been waiting in line outside polling places for up to two hours before the balloting began.

Several polling stations reported they had run out of "yes" ballots, and put in urgent calls to the electoral board for extra supplies.

Two and one-half hours after the polls opened, Torrijos walked eight blocks from his home to the Belisario Porras school to vote.

Complaint over food chain linked by friends

John Lampinen

Byline report

It started out as a typical consumer complaint.

Customer buys product. Customer decides he's been had. Customer screams that he wants his money back. Seller tries to soothe customer's feelings. Customer continues to scream. Seller finally gives in.

End of complaint?

Not in this story.

This one begins with Edward Koscal of Streamwood, a Chicago cab driver who spends $200-a-month feeding his family of four.

A FRIEND OF the family tells him he can save money on his food bill if he contracts to have groceries delivered by Great Lakes Food, Inc., of Des Plaines.

Koscal likes to save money when he can, so he invites the salesman, Pat Flowers, to come out to his house.

Flower tells him the firm doesn't spend a lot of money on gimmicks and advertising and promotions like all the supermarkets do, so it can offer him lower prices.

Fine, Koscal figures, and he signs a couple of contracts with Great Lakes for 18 months of service for $3,234.94.

BUT WHEN THE first delivery comes, Koscal looks at the food and figures it can't be worth the $811 he is paying for it.

He sends his wife out to compare the items at a few of the local grovery stores. She comes back and tells him he could be buying the same thing at the supermarket for $515.10.

This makes Koscal angry. He phones Great Lakes and asks for Flowers. Flowers isn't in, and Koscal feels like he's getting "a runaround."

Finally, a day or two later, a Great Lakes representative agrees to talk to Koscal. The representative expounds on the quality of the food. But Koscal is still boiling — he wants out — and the conversation gets heated. It ends, Koscal says, with the representative calling Koscal an "illiterate."

"RIPOFFS, THEY go on every day, and people slough them off," Koscal thinks. "Well, I'll go to jail before I pay."

He goes to State Rep. Roger Stanley, R-Streamwood, for help. Stanley helps him with his case and suggests he go to the state's attorney's office. Koscal calls and is referred to the attorney general's consumer complaint office. And Stanley calls a newspaper.

"The plan was presented to me as a money-saver. They impress on you that you're saving," Koscal says. "The man did not produce what he promised."

The newspaper calls Flowers. Flowers has Robert Stevens, a manager with Great Lakes, talk to the reporter.

FIRST OF ALL, Stevens says, the prices are "very, very competitive" and the firm has been in business in good standing for a long time, but the price factor isn't the primary argument in the sales pitch.

Golf building high costs anger residents

The Arlington Heights Park District's $1.5 million referendum to build a golf course did not raise much controversy when it was passed by voters last October.

Of 6,280 voters, 52.6 per cent approved the project, in what Parks Director Thomas Thornton calls "one of the most successful referendums the park district has ever held."

But a year later, with the golf course at Wilke and Central roads constructed and ready to seed in the spring, park officials are embroiled in a controversy with taxpayers over plans to spend more than $620,000 on a clubhouse and maintenance building.

Two taxpayers alliances and several homeowners have attended recent park district meetings to object to plans for the clubhouse, which will cost $521,000 if low bids for the project are approved today. Bids for the maintenance building total $100,284.

THE PARK BOARD of commissioners will meet at 7:30 p.m. today at the Forest View Racquet Club, 800 E. Falcon Dr.

If those bids are approved, the park district expects to increase about $240,000 more than its budget for the golf course and probably will have to take out a bank loan.

Spokesmen for the taxpayers groups have urged the park board to stay within the budget approved by the referendum for the golf course. They also objected specifically to the floor plans for the clubhouse and questioned whether park officials had accurate cost estimates and revenue projections.

At a meeting Tuesday of the park board's facilities committee, Park Board Pres. Jacqueline J. Gruenewald called the taxpayers' complaints "a very calculated, planned effort to make us look like we don't know what we're doing."

WHEN THE FIRST plans for the golf course were prepared in 1974, the clubhouse was estimated to cost $190,000 by the golf course architect. That estimate was revised by park officials to $300,000 just before the referendum.

"David Gill (the golf course architect) was very reluctant to allocate even that much of the budget to a clubhouse. The park board wanted more of a clubhouse than what Gill envisioned," Thornton said.

But even at the time of the referendum, the park board had made no decisions about what functions the clubhouse should have. Tentative plans had called for a small clubhouse with lockers and a snack shop. Once the referendum was passed, park commissioners began meeting with Forrest Wendt, the architect selected to design a clubhouse.

"Every meeting we had, the thing got bigger and bigger. After the park board decided what they wanted, Forrest Wendt gave them a cost estimate of $450,000. Since then, costs have just escalated," Thornton said.

THE TWO-STORY clubhouse planned by Wendt and the park district calls for a pro shop, a children's nursery, a manager's room, locker rooms and areas for storing carts and equipment on the main level. Plans for the upper level include a snack bar, a dining area, a kitchen and an apartment for either the golf course superintendent or manager.

Much of the controversy stems from the dining area, which park officials say is needed to handle overflow from the snack bar and for banquets.

Banquet facilities are needed if corporate golf outings are to be held at

Heated debate expected at special session

Steve Brown

From our Springfield bureau

SPRINGFIELD — The Illinois General Assembly opens today with a dozen issues sure to spark heated debate and leave legislators frazzled after an unusual work-laden fall session.

Legislative leaders and Gov. James R. Thompson have come up with enough issues to turn a generally routine veto session into a heavy workload that includes two special sessions running concurrently.

Some of the most controversial subjects to be tackled will be Laetrile, abortion and crime.

The General Assembly will have to decide whether to override Thompson's veto of a bill allowing the use of Laetrile. Thompson's position, that the apricot pit derivative is worthless as a cancer cure, stands the best chance of being sustained.

STATE REP. Donald L. Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, however, is leading a drive to override the veto.

"I have already talked to about 80 legislators, but it is difficult to predict how it will go until I talk to everyone," Totten said.

But the governor's veto of a bill banning public aid payments for abortion faces stiffer opposition. Debate in this issue is expected to be emotional during the month-long session.

Still to be hammered out is a compromise crime bill calling for harsher criminal penalties. Thompson said he wants a bill with mandatory sentencing provisions and an easy-to-remember title, Class X. House leaders want something else.

There are some drier, but important issues on tap.

THE FEDERAL government wants the state to repay $710 million it borrowed to keep the Illinois Unemployment Insurance Trust Fund from going bankrupt.

The state has until Nov. 10 to come up with a repayment plan or face costly penalties.

Another sticky problem facing legislators are federal requirements that local government employes as of June 1, be made eligible for unemployment compensation benefits.

Local government lobbyists are asking that they pay lower premium rates than private businesses. No matter who pays what, the state must add an estimated $43 million a year to the fund to cover 475,000 local government workers.

House Speaker William Redmond, D-Bensenville, said he may add even more to the workload by raising the issue of the school aid formula.

STATE EDUCATION officials call the formula obsolete and State Rep. Woods Bowman, R-Chicago, is drafting legislation to revise it.

"We have to do something about reversing the pattern of shifting the education costs back to the schools and a revision in the formula is needed," Redmond said.

Some lawmakers say Thompson has contributed to the workload as a ploy to give him more issues to bargain with during the session.

The heavy workload and Thompson's unexpected and somewhat surprising call for a second special session already has caused some aggravation among Republican leaders who will be called on to support the governor.

The action has touched off another round of speculation and has produced no concensus on how much will be accomplished. With the federal deadlines, the winter holidays and the 1978 election filing deadlines staring at lawmakers there may be too much temptation for a major action.

Politically, Thompson, who had relatively few setbacks with the Democratically controlled legislature in the spring, may find more intransigencle when he addresses them this afternoon.

Hanging skeleton suicide victim

MOKENA, Ill. (UPI) — A skeleton hanging from a tree in a field in far southwestern Cook County apparently was the remains of a suicide victim, the county Medical Examiner's office said.

The skeleton was identified as that of Phillip Radzinski, 24, a resident of Chicago's West Side who may have died four or five months ago, the examiner's office said late Saturday.

A farmer first spotted the skeleton in July and thought it was a prank. It had an artificial arm with a hook for a hand, a spokesman at Palos Community Hospital said.

Carter runs into foes wherever he goes

by CLAY F. RICHARDS

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — President Carter flew across the country to learn what he was already being told in Washington — his programs are in trouble and his popularity is slipping.

Over the weekend Carter made his first cross country campaign trip since he was elected. He found it much harder to woo the people as a member of the Washington establishment than he did a year ago campaigning as an outsider.

"I don't have all the answers," Carter used to say during the campaign. People then seemed to respect a politician who said he didn't know it all.

HE USED THE same line last weekend in Detroit, Des Moines, Omaha, Denver and Los Angeles.

"Well, he should know the answers," said a black woman in Detroit. "He's the President and if he doesn't know the answers, who does?"

Carter acknowledges his popularity has suffered a setback in recent months.

"But even in the worst of the polls, I'm only 3 per cent below where I was on election day," he adds with a grin. He's referring to the fact that the latest Louis Harris poll gave him a 48 per cent rating, compared with the 51 per cent of the vote he got last year.

Carter expected demonstrators and protesters to greet him on the trip. But he and his staff were genuinely surprised when the mass demonstration against the neutron bomb came in Iowa rather than in California as expected.

WHEN HE finally got to Los Angeles the demonstrators were there in strength for a variety of causes. Police estimates said as many as 3,500 turned out to picket the President.

There were farmers who drove their tractors in from the fertile valleys of Southern California, Jews who were afraid he is giving away too much to the Arabs in seeking a Middle East Peace and hundreds of other demonstrators ranging from members of the Hare Krishna cult to the right wing Young Americans for Freedom.

The whole purpose of the Carter trip was to go to the people and tell them the administration was concerned about their problems and was working on solutions.

He talked to the poor and unemployed in Detroit, farmers in Iowa and Air Force generals at the Strategic Air Command headquarters in Omaha.

IN DENVER he sat for an hour while farmers and officials told him that the White House decision to cut off funding for water projects was not just shutting off questionable public works projects, but turning off the water that irrigates the nation's food supply.

He told eight western governors he wouldn't do it again without consulting them first.

The President was conciliatory and understanding, but not afraid to be tough when he had to. He said that sometimes people asked for too much.

"I am concerned that there is sometimes too much whining and complaining about temporary setbacks that do concern us," he said in Los Angeles.

Carter's visit didn't leave many of the people he saw very happy. He couldn't promise the unemployed jobs; or that farmers would get higher prices for their crops and the water needed to raise them.

He couldn't teli the generals they would get their B1 bomber after all and he couldn't tell the protestors he was going to halt development of the neutron bomb.

"We've made progress this year," he told them.

HUBERT HUMPHREY, D-Minn., made his first trip back to Washington Sunday since he was diagnosed as having inoperable cancer. The "Happy Warrior" received a lift back to the nation's capital with President Carter. The two were met at Andrews Air Force base, Md. by Vice-President Walter Mondale.

'Send a check,' Hubert phones Jerry after bet

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Sen. Hubert Humphrey told President Carter Sunday he made a little wager with Gerald Ford on the Minnesota-Michigan football game, after which he phoned Ford and said, "Mr. President, send a check."

Humphrey, a strong booster of the unranked Gophers, said Ford — an ardent fan of the No. 1 rated Michigan — telephoned him last week and offered him a bet. Ford would take Michigan and give Humphrey 14 points.

Replied Humphrey, "that's Republican conservatism. I demand 21."

As is common in Washington, they compromised on 20.

For Ford to have won the bet, Michigan would have had to have beaten Minnesota by 21 points. To the surprise of nearly everyone, Minnesota won the game 16 to 0 in the biggest upset of the 1977 season.

FBI gave Interpol Jewish names

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI told Interpol which fugitive American citizens were Jews even after the international agency became part of the Nazi German police system, newly obtained Interpol documents disclosed Sunday.

According to the documents, obtained from the FBI under the Freedom of Information Act, FBI notices describing wanted Americans as "Jews," "Jewish type," and "Jewish race" were furnished to Interpol and published in its journal, "Internationale Kriminalpolizei," as late as 1940.

Only Jews were identified by religion, according to the National Commission on Law Enforcement, an arm of the Church of Scientology, which obtained the documents.

INTERPOL, a private, international criminal information system, was taken over by the Germans in 1938.

The United States joined Interpol about the same time, and J. Edgar Hoover remained in contact with top Interpol officials until a few days before Japan attacked Pearl Harbor in December 1941.

According to the documents, the first notice of an American identified as a Jew occurred on July 20, 1939, as part of the FBI search for a 45-year-old man wanted for fraudulent banking practices.

In another instance, the journal printed an FBI notice in August 1940, of a man wanted for a Los Angeles bank robbery. Along with his physical description, it described him as "an American Jew, works for a railroad."

THE INTERPOL journal of this period also published lists of those wanted for forgery of baptismal certificates — a common practice of Jews trying to escape extermination in Nazi-controlled areas of Europe.

One such listing sought information on an Otto Prtisch, who was sentenced to eight months in a German prison because he "counterfeited Catholic Baptismal Certificates of the Archdioces of Pilsen for Jews that had the intention to leave the former Czechoslovakian Republic."

Under its charter, Interpol is forbidden to concern itself with political or religious matters.

It now cites that prohibition as justifying its refusal to hunt down former Nazis.

The documents, however, suggest the Nazis used the organization to pursue their extermination campaign against the Jews.

THEY ALSO SHOW that high Interpol officials were writing, as late as 1950, of an alleged connection between crime and religious or ethnic makeup, claiming in one case the Jews "seem to be more inclined to offences with a materialistic purpose to them."

The author of that comment, Paul Marabuto of Interpol's Paris headquarters, added: "What, above all, appears from statistical comparisons, is the preference which Jewish offenders have for offences which require the use of craftiness and, similarly, their hatred for violence."

Marabuto said that explained why Interpol, "which is particularly concerned with eliminating swindling, monetary or otherwise, has so many Jewish names in its files."

The Scientologists have been trying to get the FBI-Interpol documents for more than two years.

They are leading a drive to terminate U.S. participation in Interpol.

Industrialist plans resort near Cuba

• Industrialist Cyrus Eaton Jr. is negotiating with the Cuban government to build a $200 million resort off the island's north shore. The Cleveland press has quoted Eaton as saying he expects construction to begin soon after the end of the year on the resort at Key Sabinal, an almost deserted island 450 miles east of Havana where there will be no gambling or prostitution. The resort is expected to open in 1980 and cater to American tourists.

Hostage freed as gunmen give up

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Two gunmen, surprised during the attempted holdup of a grocery store, held a young woman clerk hostage for nearly 12 hours Sunday before surrendering to police.

The suspects released 19-year-old Sharon Clark unharmed about 11:30 a.m. and then walked out of the store moments later with their hands above their heads and surrendered to police.

Acting Police Chief Ben Shearer identified the suspects as Carl Rutherford, 30, of Calhoun City, Miss., and John Neighbors, 23, address unknown. Shearer said they would be charged with armed robbery but police had agreed not to file kidnap charges in return for safe release of the hostage.

The surrender ended a drama that began when the two suspects were surprised by police during the holdup shortly before midnight. They fired a shot at the officers and took Miss Clark and a 17-year-old customer, Bob Hicks, as hostages.

THE SUSPECTS, in an attempt to negotiate for a getaway car during the predawn hours, let Hicks go. When the youth tried to start a car in front of the store, however, it lurched forward and the two men, both armed with snub-nosed .38 caliber pistols, fired two shots into the windshield.

Hicks was not hit and was allowed to leave unharmed moments later.

Shearer said Miss Clark had not been harmed but it was the third time she had been a holdup victim and she was in an "extremely nervous state." She was taken to a hospital for examination.

SHEARER SAID a woman, identified as a "friend" of one of the suspects, was found asleep in a nearby car about 9 a.m. He said she participated in the negotiations with the suspects and helped "turn the tide of surrender."

About 25 officers converged on the store about midnight after Miss Clark apparently pulled a holdup alarm.

"The initial 30 to 40 minutes were the most intense," said Shearer. "They were very demanding. They fired three shots during the night, one at police officers and two later when they released the 17-year-old hostage."

The suspects tried to use the hostages to negotiate for a getaway car. Police agreed to provide the car in return for safe release of the hostages, but later balked when the suspects insisted on taking Miss Clark with them.

Italian slain as terrorists seek revenge

ROME (UPI) — Left-wing extremists gunned down Milan city councilman Carlo Arienti Sunday and critically wounded a policeman with a bomb in the northern city of Brescia in the sixth day of attacks on German property throughout Italy, police said.

A member of the Red Brigades urban guerrilla group who telephoned the Italian news agency Ansa to claim credit for the attacks said they were intended as "honor to our West German comrades killed by German imperialism."

A series of firebomb attacks in a number of other cities damaged German property. The Red Brigades have said all "German fascist" targets in Italy are open to attack in their plan to avenge Andreas Baader, Gudrun Ensslin and Jan-Carl-Raspe, who committed suicide in German prison cells last Tuesday.

Two women in Milan, meantime, reported anonymous telephone calls declaring: "The German ambassador in Italy has been condemned . . . Dependents of the German embassy diplomats have 24 hours to leave the country."

In France, leftists firebombed a branch of the Franco-German Bank and a Mercedes showroom in Paris.

Father loves son even after fake kidnap

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — A father whose teen-age son allegedly faked his own kidnap to extort $100,000 from his parents said Sunday he still loves the boy.

"I'm not put here to judge my son. I'm put here to love him," Cordell Brown, part owner of a meat packing company, said of his son Michael, 15.

Michael and four other teen-agers ranging from 14 to 18 years old, all friends at Pioneer High School, were charged by police Saturday with faking the kidnaping.

THE PLOT, which began Wednesday with Michael's apparent disappearance, was kept secret by police and the FBI until Friday night because of fear for Michael's safety.

His father received a call Wednesday night demanding the money as ransom for his return and saying Michael would be "killed immediately" if police were notified.

"Dad, help me. They will kill me," the boy told his father ,according to police.

On Friday, the father, with an FBI agent as his passenger and a two-way radio hidden in his car, followed instructions that led him to two phone booths. He was told to leave the money beside a speed limit sign along a narrow road outside town.

THE ELDER Brown left the money and two motorcycles, each carrying two persons, drove up.

One boy scooped up the money, and officers who were hiding behind bushes leaped out and arrested two of the youths. The two others were captured after a chase.

Michael was taken into custody as he drove up to a movie theater the same night.

"My wife and I are hurt. We're brokenhearted," Brown said. "My wife and family and I have been through hell."

Michael and his friends were booked for investigation of conspiracy and extortion, police said.

World battle on hijacking lags

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Political fanatics, psychopaths or plain criminals have become an everyday menace to air travel, but effective international action to cope with mounting security problems is still a long way off.

Several agreements on the protection of aircraft and their crews and passengers are in existence and function to a degree. They are full of loopholes, however, and only about 50 per cent of all nations have joined in them.

The most recent case of international air piracy — the five-day hijacking of a German Lufthansa plane across Europe, the Middle East and Africa and the murder of its captain last week — so incensed pilots they threatened a two-day strike to protest the lack of concerted global action against such terrorists.

The pilot's postponed their walkout when U.N. Sec. General Kurt Waldheim gave his "sincere assurances" that air piracy would be the subject of an urgent debate, probably beginning Tuesday. But they said they would renew their plans if the United Nations accomplishes nothing.

THE PILOTS can expect some satisfaction. The strike threat is likely to spur more governments to sign the three principal international agreements protecting international aviation. It also will induce authorities everywhere to tighten airport security regulations, including passenger and luggage searches.

Recent hijackings and the pilots' angry response also have given new impetus to a drive within the U.N. for a comprehensive and airtight international agreement against the taking of hostages.

In the eyes of its promoters, the agreement must be strong enough to pull the rug from under any potential terrorist bent on seizing hostages, either in the air or on the ground. However, it will take several years to draft any accord to deny asylum to terrorists regardless of their motives, if it is possible at all.

THE U.N. TRIES to cope with such world problems as disarmament and air safety, but it can take action only if all members agree. Many governments have their own axes to grind on these issues, and they keep their own political, ideological, economic or military interests paramount.

This became obvious when the U.N. tried and failed to deal with international terrorism during the past five years.

Waldheim got the ball rolling in 1972 following the massacre of Israeli Olympic athletes in Munich. He asked the General Assembly to consider practical measures to stamp out international terrorism and the question was included in its agenda.

The United States submitted a draft convention against international terrorism, but it got nowhere, since Third World countries demanded exemption of "national liberation movements."

The Assembly appointed a special committee to study the causes of terrorism and possible measures to fight it. The group still is submitting annual reports, but so far they have contributed nothing to contain the menace.

AFTER ANOTHER sequence of terrorist acts, West Germany tried a new approach last year to move the problem off dead center.

One dramatic case where Arabs were among the victims was the seizure of government representatives of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries at a ministerial meeting in Vienna, Austria.

West German Foreien Minister Hans Dietrich Genscher suggested at the beginning of the 1976 assembly an international agreement against taking hostages that would eliminate any chance of asylum for kidnapers.

The proposal found more support than the anti-terrorist convention, and the Germans offered a draft to the Assembly's legal committee, which is still discussing it.

Then came the amendments.

ARAB AND African delegations asked to exempt "acts carried out in the process of national liberation or resistance against colonial rule, racist regimes, alien domination and foreign occupation."

Mexico upheld the right to asylum, traditionally sacred to most Latin American countries.

Another Arab-African group asked to exclude the threat or use of force against other states as a means of rescuing hostages — a move obviously aimed at forbidding commando actions similar to the Israeli raid on Entebbe airport in Uganda.

But it is not the Third World alone that has difficulties with a convention denying refuge to any hijacker anywhere.

The Western Europeans face the problem whether to accept a commitment to extradite refugees from Eastern Europe or the Soviet Union who grab a plane for their escape. So far, such refugees usually have been given asylum.

With these types of difficulties in the past and the prospect of them still looming ahead, it is evident the General Assembly will not be able to adopt quickly any convention against the taking of hostages.

S. Side hotel fire kills 7, injures 12

Seven persons were killed and 12 injured early Sunday in a fire that raced through a South Side transient hotel, authorities said. The blaze, which caused an estimated $35,000 damage to the Hotel Toledo, started on the first floor and spread rapidly through the two-story brick building, said Deputy Fire Marshall John McCarten. Six of the dead were trapped in a four-room addition on the first floor, McCarten said. Several residents were trapped on the second floor and were frantically trying to escape when firemen arrived, he added.

The dead included four men and three women, one of them six months pregnant, autorities said. Three of the injured were firemen but none were hurt seriously. About 30 residents had to be evacuated from the L-shaped building. Most climbed down ladders from the second floor because the fire blocked first floor exits, officials said. The fire was reported shortly after 1:30 a.m., fire officials said, and was brought under control about one hour later.

The hotel, formerly called the Paper Doll, was known as a "trouble spot" because of prostitutes and transients who frequented it, said Patrolman James T. Durkin.

ERA weapon hurts Chicago

A new weapon being used by supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment is hitting opponents where it hurts most — in the pocketbook. The new battle plan already has cost Chicago $15 million in revenue, Chicago Convention and Tourism Bureau officials said. The cause of concern is a recent agreement between 40 national organizations to keep their conventions out of states which have not ratified the national ERA. The National Organization for Women is actively recruiting more groups for the boycott. Illinois is one of the seven states which has voted against ERA. As a result, Chicago, one of the nation's major convention centers, is hard-hit.

Towns seek to pay less under jobless funds rules

by ROD COVEY

Illinois municipalities Jan. 1 will fall under the federal unemployment insurance regulations that now govern private business, but community officials say they should pay lower rates than businesses.

"Unemployment insurance is one of the most important issues facing local governments in Illinois today," William Muhlenfeld, executive director of the Northwest Municipal conference told a meeting Saturday of more than 50 area officials and state legislators.

Muhlenfeld told the group, "municipalities, villages and townships traditionally don't have the problems in unemployment that business does" and therefore should pay lower rates.

THE MEETING, at the Chateau Ritz in Niles, was called by the Northwest Municipal Conference to let area legislators hear problems local village officials want tackled in Springfield.

Topics ranged from the drinking age to the erosion of business in Illinois, but the major item concerning local offocials was the increasing costs ot local governments as a result of state and federal legislation.

By the first of the year, for example, the Illinois legislature must act to bring the state into compliance with the unemployment insurance mandates, which initially costs private employers 2.7 per cent of the first $4,200 of an employe's wages, said William Grams, conference project coordinator.

The taxable wage already will be raised to $6,000, but it is not known what rate will be imposed on the municipalities.

HOFFMAN ESTATES Village President Virginia M. Hayter and several other area officials urged legislators to strive for a starting rate "as low as 1 per cent" as opposed to the 1.5 per cent rate currently under consideration in House Bill 236.

Rep. Roger Keats, R-Winnetka, blamed the labor lobby for state laws which are crippling municipalities. He urged local officials to make their voices heard at Springfield.

Richard W. Fonte, Palatine village board trustee, lashed out at legislators for 2-year-old laws liberalizing workman's compensation eligibility requirements.

"The village's workman's compensation costs prior to state action was $27,339. After state action the insurance premium increased by 211 per cent to $84,997," he said.

SEN. JOHN GRAHAM, R-Barrington, urged local officials to be more selective in retaining employes who eventually will be "eroding pension funds."

"Get rid of the people who are not worth it now" so that they will not be able to leech onto the funds when they retire, he said.

Hearings on grant applications set

Hearings to consider applying for $451,000 through the U.S. Housing and Community Development block grant program have been set for Oct. 31 and Nov. 28 by Arlington Heights officials.

The federal funds handled by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development are the subject of annual controversy in the village because of the housing assistance plan which must be filed with the application for the money.

The community development program passed by Congress in 1974 is a six-year program under which the size of the grants increase each year to eligible communities that apply.

IN 1976, THE village board voted 6-3 not to apply for the $125,000 grant that was available, mainly because of fears that there may be strings attached to the money that would require the village to provide low- and moderate-income housing.

Of the 527 communities eligible to apply that year, Arlington Heights and 15 others did not.

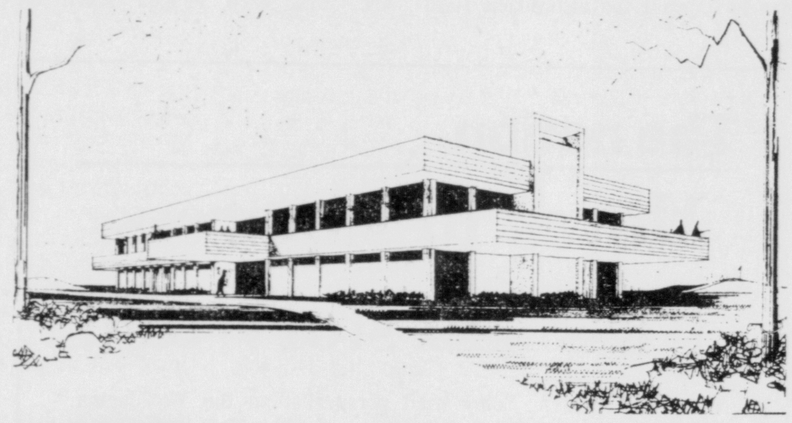
In the past two years, however, the village board has voted 5-3 to apply for the federal money, which totaled $134,000 in 1976 and $319,000 this year.

If the village board decides to apply for the housing and community development grant again this year, Arlington Heights will receive more than $451,000 and will be eligible to apply for more than $459,000 in each of the next two years.

The public hearings scheduled for Oct. 31 and Nov. 28 will be conducted by the village board's finance committee and the local housing commission, which will recommend to the village board how the money should be spent.

In the past two years, the federal money has been used to acquire land for a downtown parking garage, to relocate a sewer line, to acquire property for the Arlington Heights Historical Society and to install sidewalks.

The village's current housing assistance plan, which also will be reviewed by the finance committee and the housing commission, calls for the development of 90 units of low- and moderate-income housing in each of the next three years with 50 units in existing rental buildings and 40 units of new construction.



THE PROPOSED clubhouse planned for the golf course now under construction at Central and Wilke roads would cost $520,000.

Golf high costs anger residents the course, park district officials said. Such events usually make money, they said.

The room, which will seat 100 to 150 persons, also probably will be used by women golf leagues and senior citizen groups for meetings, Thornton said.

Revenue from the snack bar and banquet facility will be used to pay off the bank loan, Thornton said, but the taxpayers alliances objected, saying that revenue should be used to abate tax rate increases.

"ANY SPENDING of taxpayer funds, whether by direct taxation or internally generated revenue, is using our tax dollars," said Ed Keim, a member of the Taxpayers Action Group recently formed by leaders of several Arlington Heights homeowners associations. "We think you should live by the referendum as submitted to the voters and approved by the voters," Keim said.

The taxpayers groups also questioned whether the eating facilities will produce revenue. To answer those doubts, the park board this week directed its business manager, Larry Maholland, to prepare revenue projections for tonight's meeting on how much profit just a snack bar will produce.

"We've made our decision that this is the facility we want, but I want facts to give us the cushion to go ahead and do it," Mrs. Gruenewald said.

This classic play is a merry whirlwind of mixups, tricks, comedy, poetry and romance. Supernatural creatures interfere in the lives of nobles and common men to keep the fun and confusion going, but the plot handily resolves itself with a play-within-a-play ending.

Director of the play is Douglas K. Murphy and technical director is Thomas Friel. Tickets are $1.50 for students, $2 for adults and can be purchased from cast members or by calling 253-0200, ext. 77.

Buffalo Grove man, 31, dies of smoke inhalation

A Buffalo Grove man who apparently fell asleep after lighting a cigaret was killed Sunday when a fire broke out in his apartment.

Gary McKenna, 31, died of smoke inhalation in his apartment at 70 St. Mary's Pkwy., fire officials said.

McKenna, a senior program analyst for Baxter Travenol Laboratories in Deerfield, apparently left a lighted cigaret on the couch, and then fell asleep elsewhere in the apartment, fire officials said.

FIREFIGHTERS said the fire caused little damage to the apartment and almost went unnoticed by neighbors.

"It's strange," said one firefighter at the scene. "There was almost no damage, except, of course for the loss of human life."

The only damage was some scorch marks on th rug beneath the couch, firefighters said, and although the smell of smoke permeated the hallways, no other apartment suffered smoke damage.

It is not known how long the couch smoldered before McKenna was discovered. A woman across the hall said she thought she smelled smoke when she got up, but she made coffee first and sat down for a few minutes before the smell became strong enough to investigate.

WHEN SHE opened her apartment door, she said she thought she saw smoke coming from under McKenna's door. Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights firefighters answered the call at 7:14 a.m.

McKenna, a bachelor, lived alone in the apartment, and his mother and a brother lived nearby in Cambridge on the Lake apartments in Buffalo Grove. Although he had lived there about five years, his neighbors knew little about him. They said he was a quiet man and kind and considerate.

"He was a very nice, accommodating, considerate kind of man," said a woman who lived down the hallway.

Steve Austin worked in the same department as McKenna at Baxter and lived nearby in the same apartment complex. He said he didn't know McKenna very well.

"He was a nice, quiet guy," Austin said. "I saw him last Friday night when a bunch of us, about seven or eight, went out for a drink after work, but I didn't get a chance to talk to him very much.

"The fire inspector came over and asked me if I knew what he was doing last night, and where he might have been, but I guess I just don't know very much about him personally."

Plain speaking asked of HEW rules

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare, which asked for "common sense" advice on how to improve its rules and regulations, got this answer: write them in plain, simple English.

HEW officials said the department so far has received more than 300 suggestions from governors, private citizens, schools, hospitals, nursing homes and various organizations on how to improve the voluminous rules it issues governing human service programs.

Dubbing it "Operation Common Sense," HEW Sec. Joseph Califano last month solicited recommendations from anyone "who has encountered a rule that has perverse effects, a confusing form, an unfair requirement laid down by this department."

AMONG THOSE impressed by the idea was Alabama Gov. George Wallace, who once heaped scorn on "guideline writers who can't park their bicycles straight."

He told Califano that Operation Common Sense is "a worthwhile effort that is long overdue."

A sampling of other responses:

• A Texas Education Agency official said all rules and regulations should "be written in plain English."

• Tom Dickson, director of federal funds for Westerville, Ohio, city schools, said, "a rule of thumb you may want to consider is to 'Keep It Simple.' "

• An Arlington, Va., school official complained that "regulations coming from HEW must be devised by lawyers to be read by lawyers."

• A Missouri social services worker asked for a job "simplifying HEW regulations."

And Idaho's Medicaid chief tried to describe how tough it can be to figure out what HEW regulations mean.

"In an attempt to clarify the federal meaning," he said, "we are referenced to a variety of acts, and subheadings of the acts and from there to public law citations, each of which progressively lacks in clarity and intent."

PLAIN ENGLISH, however, will not satisfy everyone's needs.

The National Council of La Raza recommended that rules be written in Spanish.

And Honolulu's Mayor Frank Fasi said he is fed up with the "public relations emptiness" of federal advice-seeking efforts like Califano's.

"I've received hundreds of form letters like yours of Sept. 15, 1977," Fasi wrote. "They keep coming ad nauseam.

"They have come to me from the President on down. Each is stamped with a signature and each says in effect, 'You lucky guys, we're going to do so-and-so and we need your thinking. Send us a reply within 30 days. Let's get together sometime, etc.' "

Fasi dismissed the whole affair by telling Califano to "stop by and say hello" next time he's in Hawaii.

The nation

Moves to suppress Russ sub story told

CIA chief William Colby used persuasion on the Washington Post's publisher and Henry Kissinger urged the New York Times in 1975 to suppress stories on U.S. efforts to pluck a Soviet submarine from the ocean bottom, it was reported Sunday. The Post printed a lengthy account of censored CIA documents describing the intensive persuasion campaign by Colby and his aides with some of the nation's most influential media executives. It said the papers were obtained in a Freedom of Information Act suit initiated by journalist Harriet Ann Phillippi, now with an Atlanta television station.

They described a Feb. 27, 1975, phone conversation between Colby and Parade magazine editor Lloyd Shearer, who had obtained photographs of a mystery ship, Howard Hughes' huge salvage vessel the Glomar Explorer, off the coast of Hawaii. "You are onto something very, very delicate," the CIA director told Shearer. "This one I really would like you to sit on." Shearer expressed concern that other journalists would suppress the story, "Do you think you can sit on this?" he asked. "I will try like hell," Colby replied.

The operation seeking to use a huge claw to pick a sunken Soviet submarine from the Pacific Ocean floor was code-named Project Jennifer, and the documents show the agency made frenetic efforts to keep it secret until self-imposed press censorship collapsed when colunist Jack Anderson broke the story.

The CIA's efforts to put a lid on the story began with a relatively brief account in the Feb. 8, 1975 Los Angeles Times. On March 3, the New York Times sent Colby a formal letter agreeing to withhold the story providing it would be promptly informed if another publication planned to use it "Secretary Kissinger has already volunteered an oral assurance on that point," the letter said.

Detroit pupils spurn free shots

Detroit health officials, vowing to keep up to 12,000 students lacking vaccinations against childhood diseases out of classes, Sunday reported a disappointing turn out at a weekend inoculation clinic. Officials said elementary students spurning the free shots will get unexpected holidays Monday for lacking proof of state-mandated protection against measles, rubella, whooping cough, diphtheria, tetanus and polio. Parents received notices outlining the ultimatum requiring inoculation records or a waiver indicating they objected on religious grounds.

The world

Six nations hunt Schleyer killer

Police from six nations hunted Sunday for the killers of industrialist Hanns-Martin Schleyer, focusing their search on the French-German-Swiss border area near Basel. French police searched forts and underground tunnels of the old World War II Maginot line defense system close to the Franco-German border, looking for a hideout where kidnapers held Schleyer for six weeks until his death Oct. 18. Some of the 16 terrorists wanted in connection with the kidnapping were reported to have been sighted in Belgium, Holland and Italy. Irmgard Moeller, who unsuccessfully tried to kill herself Tuesday at the Stuttgart-Stammheim prison in a suicide pact with Andreas Baader and two other members of his gang, was moved from a Tuebingen clinic to a secret location to prevent any attempt to free her.

U.S. warned: stay out of Ireland

The political chief of the outlawed Irish Republican Army Sunday warned the United States to stay out of Northern Ireland and denounced the Nobel Peace Prize-winning Northern Ireland Peace Movement. Addressing the tightly guarded annual two-day convention of Sinn Fein, the IRA's political wing, Rory O'Brady welcomed President Carter's recent references to Northern Ireland "in that they help to internationalise our struggle." But we must guard against any attempt by American administrations to fill at a future date the so-called power vacuum left in Ireland when Britain is forced by the people's struggle to disengage," he said.

Egypt cites Carter assurances

President Carter has assured Egypt the Palestinian question will be dealt with "as the core of the Middle East problem" at any Arab-Israeli peace talks in Geneva, the semi-official Egyptian press reported Sunday. The United States also said it will maintain consultations with the concerned parties to draw up a formula acceptable to all for arrangements for the talks, which are expected to resume in December, the newspapers Al Ahram and Al Gomhouria reported.

Thoughts on a Mattress
A one act play

Place: Someone's bedroom.
Time: 11:30 P.M.
Mabel: John, are you awake?
John: Naturally I'm awake. Who could sleep on this mattress?
Mable: It's only six years old and they told us it should last 15 or 20 years.
John: They meant that's how much older we would get if we slept on it for six years.
Mabel: It was their best mattress. It is supposed to have over 800 coils in it.
John: I know — I can feel every one of them poking me in the side.
Mabel: We should go to the Schaumburg Mattress Factory. They make a beautiful mattress — it has the cutest shaped coils in it.
John: How do you know so much about them?
Mabel: I was there with Marge last month. She says their new mattress is fantastic. Why don't you go right now?
John: Are you crazy? It's almost midnight!
Mabel: Then where are you going?
John: I'm going to sleep on the sofa.
Mabel: Oh no you don't. You had the sofa last night. You can sleep on the floor tonight!

PRINCE CHARLES takes a close look at a poster offered by an unidentified woman, right, following church services Sunday in Atlanta. About 1,200 persons packed the cathedral of the Episcopalian church to see the prince before he left for Texas.

Prince home on the range; San Francisco stop is next KINGSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Prince Charles played polo, viewed a cattle roundup and relaxed in private on the ranch of the former U.S. Ambassador to Great Britain Sunday.

The stay at the Tobin and Ann Armstrong ranch, 40 miles south of this South Texas town, marked a break from the official schedule followed by the heir to the British throne on his goodwill tour of the U.S. Mrs. Armstrong was ambassador to Britain from 1976 to 1977.

The prince was to resume his public visit Monday with a tour of the Johnson Space Center at Houston. He will be invited to fly a mission segment in space shuttle simulators accompanied by his U.S. astronaut hosts.

After a visit to a department store in Houston, Charles was scheduled to unveil a plaque commemorating the arrival of the first direct British Caledonian flight from London to Houston Intercontinental Airport.

THE PRINCE ALSO was slated to speak at a dinner given by the City of Houston, where he was to receive an honorary degree from the Stevens Institute of Technology.

Tuesday the prince was to arrive in San Antonio for a tour of the Alamo, where such legendary American heroes as Jim Bowie and Davy Crockett were killed in 1836 attempting to fight off a large Mexican military contingent.

A walk down San Antonio's "Paseo del Rio," the tropically landscaped "Riverwalk" that winds through the city's downtown, also was planned along with a barge tour down the river.

IN SAN FRANCISCO, meantime, the British consulate was bombarded by phone calls from persons who want Prince Charles to meet their daughters. He said Sunday he won't have time for an "amorous interlude" when he visits San Francisco this week.

The consulate has been receiving day-and-night calls as well as letters from residents pointing out the virtues of their daughters.

But consulate spokesman Donald Stokes said of the anxious callers, "I can assure them that Prince Charles will not have one second free to indulge in any kind of amorous interlude."

Charles, 29-year-old heir to the British crown, is scheduled to arrive in San Francisco Thursday as part of a 12-day, nine-city tour of the United States. His party has reserved the entire 11-room 23rd floor of the Fairmont Hotel atop Nob Hill.

THE FINAL DAY of Charles' San Francisco visit, next Sunday, has officially been billed as a day of rest. And Stokes said:

"I can assure you that his host will be male and there is no question or possibility of him seeing the ladies.

"I fully expect the PR (public relations) flacks will put out stories about Charles being seen cuddling with some movie star or whatever, but they will not be true."

Others seeking to meet Charles in this city known for its tolerance of the unusual include believers in a flat-earth theory, religious cults, mystics, members of psychic groups and someone who wants to share a hot dog with him.

BUT A BRITISH official said they, too, will not be granted audiences with the future king.

What Charles will do is what most visitors do in this tourist-oriented city — ride a cable car, see Fisherman's Wharf and drive over the Golden Gate Bridge.

Pollution hurts school work: study

BERKELY, Calif. (UPI) — Children exposed to heavy air pollution may suffer in their school work and sports ability, an official report says.

Youngsters who breathe in pollution also can expect a higher incidence of respiratory problems than adults and face the prospect of higher medical costs throughout their lives, the report says.

"Excessive lead absorption may be related to learning disabilities and other symptons determined minimal brain dysfunction," Califnornia Health Director Jerome Lackner said Sunday.

Pollution's effects on children have been studied under the supervision of Dr. Jerome Wesolowski at the Dept. of Health in Berkeley.

THE STUDY SAID that because children are smaller, have more sensitive lungs than adults and breathe quicker, they will be harmed more often.

"It used to be a kid would have had to stagger and gasp for breath before he'd be rated as a victim of air pollution," said a Health Dept. spokesman.

"Now we've come to realize the effects can be far more subtle."

Pollutants studied include smog, chemicals emitted from refineries and lead, most of which comes from cars.

Wesolowski's teams checked blood samples from youngsters in traffic-congested areas of Los Angeles and Oakland.

Studies showed 6 to 8 per cent of the children carried abnormally high levels of lead and should have medication.

Dr. Daniel Jenkins of the Sonoma State Hospital for the retarded said lead poisoning symptoms include inability to sit still, short attention spans, irritability and combativeness.

"We're concerned that elevated levels of lead may inhibit a child's performance," Lackner said.

Korea probe needs defendants' aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Justice Department's hopes of cracking the Korean influence-buying scandal now appear to rest with pressuring two other defendants to become government witnesses, sources close to the investigation said Sunday.

The continued refusal of rice merchant and former Washington socialite Tongsun Park to cooperate means investigators must look to his accused co-conspirators — former Rep. Richard Hanna, D-Calif., and Korean-born businessman Hancho Kim — for vital evidence.

Investigators also will continue to release documents embarrassing to the Seoul government in an effort to prod it into providing access to Park and to other information, the sources said.

THE SEOUL REGIME still denies any involvement in the alleged scheme to prevent cuts in U.S. aid to Korea by lavishing money, gifts and other favors on congressmen.

But investigators do not plan to let the case "die down," a source said, and will continue releasing Park's documents in a manner that ironically could cost the Korean government the very aid the plan was designed to protect.

"President Carter is proposing $800 million worth of arms to be turned over to the Koreans," one official said. "Congress may just say, 'The hell with them.' "

Park, alleged to be the central figure in the plot, has remained in Seoul and out of reach of investigators since he was indicted on 36 counts in mid-August. He is believed to be the key to unraveling the plan traced to as long ago as 1968.

LAST WEEK, he refused Justice Dept. offers of leniency — and probably immunity from prosecution — if he would return to Washington to testify in the case.

Sources say prosecutors are now doubtful they will be able to get to the core of the scandal or trace many payoffs unless either:

- Park and the South Korean government relent under diplomatic pressure and agree to cooperate;
- Or the two others indicted as conspirators — Hanna and Kim — provide testimony in hopes of getting leniency or immunity under "the threat of a heavy jail sentence."

WITHOUT PARK, the Justice Dept. "cannot effectively prosecute . . . many more people besides Hanna" and possibly Kim, a reliable source told UPI.

Whether there is enough evidence to convict Hanna or Kim and apply the needed pressure thus becomes the key question.

Hanna is accused of helping hatch the plot and of targeting congressmen for Korean agents to approach. Kim is charged with conspiring to distribute up to $600,000 to U.S. officials.

The two defendants face separate trials beginning Jan. 9 in U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia.

U.S. proposes guides for store cleanliness

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal government is about to propose the first national guidelines aimed at keeping the country's 200,000 grocery stores clean and wholesome.

The proposed "model law" for state and local jurisdictions covers such points as:

- The minimum height off the floor at which food should be stored (six inches).
- The internal temperature to which roast beef in delicatessens must be cooked (130 F).
- The personal cleanliness of store employes, who, it says, "shall keep their fingernails trimmed and clean."
- The presence of "live animals" inside the store: Forbidden except for guide dogs for the blind.

It also suggests that meat cutting blocks are made of hard maple or a similar nonabsorbent wood; that food cutting or processing utensils should be washed after each use; and that hand washing facilities should be available to all employes, with enough towels so each person has his own.

THE FOOD AND Drug Administration, which will announce the proposal in Tuesday's edition of the Federal Register, said no such model ordinance has ever been written "for the retail food store industry."

The agency also said it recognizes "the primary jurisdiction of state and local governments over retail food stores, and has therefore concentrated its regulatory efforts on assuring the safety and sanitation of food," before it reaches the store shelf.

"There are about 200,000 retail food stores in the United States," it added, and federal inspectors in any case could not oversee all of them.

The proposal will be published for 90 days of industry and public comment, after which the FDA will decide whether to make it final, and in what form.

Complaint over food chain grows on customers' links save all the money in the world," he says.

Stevens adds that Koscal is including finance charges, freezer rentals and a required fee Great Lakes calls its "Gourmet Service Food Program" in his figures and that's not fair.

Customers don't have to rent freezers, he says, and if they pay cash-on-delivery, they don't have to pay finance charges. The gourmet service is mainly for overhead, and after the initial 18 months, he says, there will be no fee for it either.

CUSTOMERS DO save money, Stevens says, although it might take some months before they begin realizing it.

"We don't tell them," he says. "that everything is going to pay for itself today."

Koscal replies, "I'm not interested in saving money in 18 months. I was told I would be saving money tomorrow."

Stevens tells the reporter not to worry.

"We don't bamboozle anybody," he says. "If the man is unhappy, he can cancel out, and we'll pick up the stuff, and that'll be the end of it."

THE NEXT DAY, Flowers calls Koscal and the two of them agree on a cancellation. But it is not the end of it.

It is only the beginning.

Since Great Lakes does little advertising, one way it tries to attract customers is by offering old ones a $15 incentive to find new ones.

Which means that most of Great Lakes' customers became one at the suggestion of a friend who already was one. It is an extremely effective technique. Who do you trust more than a friend? It can also be a dangerous one.

"Once anybody's unhappy for whatever reason," Stevens concedes, "they all get upset."

IT DID NOT take long for Koscal's anger to ignite the chain.

Rosemary Quinley of Streamwood had recommended Great Lakes to the Koscals. She had been fairly satisfied with the program until Koscal came over to itemize her food bill as he had done his.

Now, she is demanding that Great Lakes cancel her contract.

The Quinleys got into the program at the suggestion of Mrs. Robert Tontillo of Schaumburg.

The Tontillos had expressed confidence in the program even after they heard Mrs. Quinley complain about it.

BUT AFTER she got her second delivery, Mrs. Tontillo says, she began reevaluating. She's not so sure about it any more, she says, and she's considering trying to get out of it.

They heard about Great Lakes from Tontillo's brother Frank of Pistakee Heights.

He has been getting groceries delivered by the firm for almost a year, Frank Tontillo says, and he had been very happy with it until he heard about the other complaints. Then, he called a neighborhood butcher to compare meat prices. He is not happy anymore.

"As soon as we can get out of it," he says, "we will."

Will it all end there?

Tontillo says he got into the program after his wife heard about it from a friend at work.

"When she goes in tomorrow," he says, "she's going to tell him to get out of it, too."

Lab tests dispute report of Presley's death cause

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—A county medical examiner's findings that drugs played no role in the death of Elvis Presley do not correspond with extensive laboratory work ordered by Baptist Hosptial pathologists who actually conducted the Presley autopsy, it was reported Sunday.

Medical Examiner Dr. Jerry Francisco said Friday Presley died of hypertensive heart disease with coronary artery heart disease as a contributing factor. He said none of the 10 drugs found in lab tests played any role in Presley's death.

But a Memphis newspaper, The Commercial Appeal, said Sunday the chief of Baptist Hospital's pathology department did not consider it possible that heart disease alone killed Presley.

Dr. E. Eric Muirhead, an internationally recognized authority on hypertension, actually conducted the autopsy after Presley died Aug. 16. The report was turned over to Francisco who made his ruling on cause of death based on the findings.

MUIRHEAD, WHO could not be reached for comment, took no part in Francisco's news conference Friday and did not sign the medical examiner's written statement to reporters.

The newspaper said the hospital's autopsy report lists Presley's death as a drug-related one commonly known as "polypharmacy." The autopsy report is being kept confidential by hospital officials.

Baptist Hospital Vice President Maurice Elliott said Sunday he could not comment on the autopsy results because any statement would violate medical confidentiality. He called the position on silence "frustrating."

"It is a really difficult position to be in to say you cannot comment on the accuracy of Dr. Francisco's findings," said Elliott. "We feel comfortable with our autopsy report. It was not done haphazardly and the conclusions were reached only after a great deal of study and review."

He said the report was given to the Presley family.

Black cancer death rate still high

Black patients continue to show higher mortality rates from cancer than whites and survival rates for both have changed little during the past 25 years, the Journal of the American Medical Assn. reports.

The Medical News section of the Oct. 24 edition of the journal reports that when all cancer patients are considered, the therapeutic gains against bladder and prostate cancer are offset by the increased relative frequency of lung cancer.

The report says 41 per cent of all white and 32 per cent of all black cancer patients survive five years — an insignificant change since 1950, when survival rates were 39 and 27 per cent, respectively.

For the most of the major cancers, blacks continue to have substantially poorer chances of survival in cases of cancer than whites, the report says, citing a study by the National Cancer Institute.

However, the study also showed a marked improvement for black patients in the five-year survival rate for breast, bladder, prostate and rectal cancer.

The biggest improvements in survival rates for white patients came in bladder and prostate cancer, with a slight improvement in breast and rectal cancer.

The six other leading cancers — uterine, cervical, colon, stomach, lung and pancreas — showed no more than 5 per cent improvements in the five-year survival rates during the past 25 years for both blacks and whites.

Drugs treating angina pectoris

Angina pectoris, a heart disease, is being treated successfully with medication and no longer necessarily requires surgery, according to a report released today in the Journal of the American Medical Assn.

Dr. Oglesby Paul of Chicago's Northwestern University School of Medicine reports in the journal that 13 of 15 persons whose conditions were too advanced for surgery were treated successfully for four years with drugs and a graded exercise routine.

Angina pectoris is characterized by a sensation of pressure, tighness or pain usually in the front part of the chest.

The symptoms are a sign that the heart muscle is not getting enough oxygen through its blood supply. An attack often is brought on by overexercise, excitement or overeating.

Dr. Paul says the usefulness of medication to treat angina has been overlooked because of the emphasis on surgery to treat the condition.

Nitroglycerine usually is used as treatment, but the physician says new effective drugs are also available.

How much life insurance is enough?

Historically, the forces of nationalism and independence movements have worked to the direct advantage of the United States. Enterprising U.S. corporations have moved in as colonial administrations withdrew. Large scale mining and forestry operations have earned third world countries the dollars to buy a wide variety of finished goods including manufacturing and power plants. Now the prevailing pattern in business is "Aventuras Conjuntas" (Joint Venture) with U.S. firms teaming up with talent and money in Asia, Africa, and Latin America.

It was the U.S. which won by default in the collapse of the Spanish Empire weakened by European wars. Direct U.S. gains included the Spanish/Mexican Southwest and California and the Philippines (later granted independence). These are the best-known results of the brief Hispanic American Wars. Not so readily perceived by the average U.S. citizen is the scope of profitable U.S. investments in the former Spanish territories in our hemisphere: Mexico — $2.8 billions; Argentina — $1.2 billions; Venezuela — $1.8 billions; Colombia — $600 millions; Peru — $900 millions; Chile — $600 millions; Ecuador — $340 millions; Dominican Republic — $400 millions; Guatemala — $200 millions. The former Portuguese colony of Brazil is boosted with $3.7 billions in U.S. investments.

We are now dealing with proud and independent peoples whose rising standards of living in urban areas place them often times on a cultural, educational, and economic par with U.S. citizens. Fortunately, we have learned to exercise diplomatic restraint with our less powerful neighbors intervening directly only in the affairs of the Dominican Republic and Cuba in recent years. Otherwise, we have relied upon military funding and training to undergird the 'stabilizing' influence of junta governments. Economic development assistance should not be lost sight of.

In view of the U.S. history of support for and profit from independence movements (down to present day Rhodesia), it is a strange anomaly to find ourselves charged with colonial policies in the administration of the Panama Canal Zone (12:1 vote against the U.S. in the U.N. Security Council and repeated vigorous denunciations in the Organization of American States).

The only way for the average U.S. citizen to come to an understanding of the situation would be to erect barbed wire fences from the Canadian border to the Gulf of Mexico 100 miles east and 100 miles west of the Mississippi River, move in Panamanian troops, and turn over control of the territory and traffic on the great river to the Republic of Panama.

This simple analogy does not take into account non-support for the illegitimate children of 'Canalista' G.I.'s born of Panamanian girls nor other G. I. crimes not governable by Panamanian courts. But it does drive home the concept of a nation divided by the Canal Zone.

We cannot oppose the Panamanian demand for sovereignty over that territory. "Aventuras Conjuntas" is the principle that Yanguis have promulgated in their business dealings. It is time that the same Joint Venture principle were applied to the administration of the Panama Canal.

U.S. military aid to the Republic of Panama and training of Panamanian contingents to serve alongside reduced U.S. military forces should provide security. The fact of Pacific and Atlantic U.S. Naval fleets and a day of push-button warfare reduces dependence on the canal for defesne.

The overriding consideration in this debate should be respect for Panama's territorial integrity and the fostering of the concept of profitable partnerships in Panama, Latin America, and all of our Third World contract negotiations.

She says 'yield' sign causes hazard

I reside in the Westfield section of Des Plaines. In order to reach my home I often travel north bound on Lee Street turning west on Walnut.

Recently a curious thing happened at this intersection. A traffic sign was erected instructing drivers to yield to the traffic on Graceland Avenue. This traffic must obey a STOP sign.

Lee Street during a major portion of the day is a heavily traveled state route. It is commercially zoned and conducive to a variety of traffic problems. I feel that coming to a stop in the midst of these circumstances is a hazard to myself and passengers.

Having lived at the same address for 26 years, I believe I am familiar with this corner. Under normal driving conditions I slow down as I approach the island and "nose" my way into the intersection accelerating after both (sometimes 3 or 4) lanes of traffic are aware of my intention to pass in front of them. Now, if I have to "yield" I would be stopped in the midst of a great deal of traffic. If I were to wait until all lanes of southbound Graceland were at a dead stop and proceed with caution I could a) be struck in the rear b) wait for a train so as to give me a clear field c) sit until all lanes are filled with considerate people who are familiar with the yield sign and have the courtesy to allow me to pass.

In my opinion the sign should be taken down immediately so that I might get my "nose" back in joint.

He urges full illegal sewer repair

I read with interest your article on illegal sewer hookups. I would like to know what the contractors are going to do for $2,000 of our tax dollars per home. They are going to do all the work from the inside without disturbing the outside when the real problem is in the middle of these people's front lawns.

The house drain tile is connected to the sanitary sewer which is of an inadequate size and during heavy rains can't handle the volume. The water gets forced back to the house and in the basement. Are the contractors going to pump the sewer water in the back yards? A sump pump can't handle the volume anyway. Why not end the problem forever and get our monies worth, dig up the front lawn where the real problem is, seal off the drain tile, then go in the basement and seal the floor drain.

An apology

Your article of October 19, on the Village Youth Center quoted me correctly in what I said about the park district namely "they would screw it up in twenty minutes."

I wish to publicly apologize for the remark. It was said in a fit of anger. As a village trustee my comment was completely out of line.

Unsexy legislative crisis

The General Assembly opens today with several emotional charged issues that have received widespread publicity thanks to the efforts of Gov. James Thompson and legislative leaders.

Thompson's proposal to create Class X felonies and his vetoes of legalization of Laetrile and the ban on public aid payments for abortion certainly deserve attention. However, there are other issues with far-reaching impact that are in danger of being overshadowed by these emotional issues.

Although less glamorous, two issues centering on the state's unemployment compensation insurance payments need to be tackled by lawmakers quickly.

The federal government has imposed a Nov. 10 deadline on state officials to come up with a plan on repaying $710 million the state has borrowed in recent years to pay jobless benefits.

In recent years many states were forced to dip into the Unemployment Insurance Trust Fund to keep from going bankrupt.

Unless the legislature acts by Nov. 10 to come up with a repayment plan, the federal government will impose a surtax that could cost employers in the state up to $170 per employe this year, on top of already steep increases this past year.

Of course, this penalty would be passed along to residents who purchase services and products.

Another element of the unemployment insurance issue that must be addressed is a new federal guideline requiring the state's 475,000 local government employees brought into the Unemployment Insurance Trust Fund.

To comply with the new guideline, the state must determine how the state and local governments will share the $43 million annual cost of coverage for local government employes.

If the state fails to provide a formula by Jan. 1, the state's private employers will be assessed a penalty amounting to 2.7 per cent on their federal unemployment insurance tax.

No matter what happens, Illinois businesses will pay higher unemployment compensation insurance premiums. But inaction by the legislature, or failure to devise workable solutions will be even more costly.

The fact that Illinois residents have been left unaware of important legislative matters such as unemployment compensation, can be traced in part to the press agentry surrounding the pet bills of Thompson and the Democratic-controlled legislature.

Since the close of the last General Assembly session in June, Thompson has emphasized the importance of his Class X felony bill with provisions for mandatory sentencing for some crimes.

House Speaker William Redmond, D-Bensenville, and other legislative leaders, meanwhile, have devoted most of their energy arguing against the Class X bill and seeking public support for their efforts to override Thompson vetoes of Laetrile and a ban on public aid payments for abortion.

While those issues have their place before the public eye, political infighting and headline seeking publicity will not be in the best interest of the public.

Governor Thompson and legislative leaders must concentrate on some of the pocketbook issues they are facing, as well as on the "sexy" political issues.

Downtown plan interesting

A $100 million proposal to build three 20-story office buildings straddling the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks in downtown Mount Prospect is a provocative idea which deserves serious thought.

The project, a brainchild of Des Plaines architect Henry Falstad, may never be realized, but it represents the kind of initiative needed to rejuvenate Mount Prospect's downtown district.

The plan calls for the buildings to be constructed between Maple and Pine streets over the railroad tracks. One of the buildings would house a new train station. The complex would bring about 15,000 persons to the central business district, along with new businesses and services, its designer says.

Mount Prospect officials have not decided whether to back the project, but will begin hearings on it soon.

Falstad's plans may seem grandiose, but the fact is that downtown needs something innovative to reverse a trend toward stagnation. This plan will force a review of the downtown needs.

Big John's improvement nearly the death of Mom

Jim Bishop

The family was concerned. Big John was slipping. The strutting tiger was crouching, licking imaginary wounds. In a year, his weight dropped from 254 to 155. There was a world outside the frame house in Bogota, New Jersey, but he turned his back to it.

My father was in his mid-70s, still working a nine-hour day. Obviously, he was depressed. Big John didn't like the word. "I'm in a perpetual grouch," he said. My mother nodded and raised her eyes to heaven.

My old man and I were more than father and son. We were first-class friends all the way. He no longer confided in me. I asked him to Thanksgiving dinner. He put on his sardonic smile, "What," he said, "are you inviting the slaves in from the fields once a year?"

HE BECAME unreachable. He read books by John Gunther over and over. He listened to Edward R. Murrow on a console radio. Sometimes he retired to bed after dinner. At others, he dozed in an old morris chair through the night.

Big John began to look like his own father. His nose appeared to grow. The voluble articulate man, the priceless story teller, cut his conversation to, "Is that so?" It was akin to watching a great book yellow with curling pages.

I spoke to his doctor. He said he had intended to have Big John stop by for an examination. My old man never disputed a physician or a priest. He went. Stripped he looked like a pregnant kangaroo. He was thumped, listened to, specimened, EKG'd, blood chemistried, etc., etc.

When he emerged, I said, "Well?" He glared. "Nothing," he said. "Not a damn thing. Every time that guy needs a new set of golf clubs, he calls John Q. Sucker." "Still," I said, "it's nice to get a good report."

"Oh," he said, "he gave me a new set of pills. I haven't used up the last batch," "What are the new ones?" "Testosterone," he said. I thought a moment. "Isn't that a sex hormone?" He shook his head in a sorrow at my stupidity. "Your ignorance," he said, "is monumental at times. This is to help me get an appetite."

I LEFT ON AN editorial trip. The absence was farily long. When I returned, I set up a pinochle match with dad. Like Doctor Faust, he was rejuvenated. He had gained 12 pounds, his nose was smaller, he told funny stories about the Irish, and he explained again that if he had a sallow complexion like mine he'd wear a maroon tie.

It was the old days again. We went to the stadium together and saw the Yanks clinch another pennant. He wore his old uniform of navy blue suit, striped tie, gleaming black shoes, and had a hearing aid in his spectacles.

"Eleanor Roosevelt wears 'em," he said happily. "When I turn the volume up, everybody sounds like Radio Tokyo." Mom looked haggard. She would do half her dusting and flop in a chair to breathe. She wore her old family signal not to speak to her — a napkin around her head with a safety pin in the back.

I kissed her on the cheek and asked how she felt. "Awful," she said a bit too loud. Communications were down. My sister Adele was good at getting the scoop, so I asked what the problem was.

SHE SHRUGGED. "Exhaustion?" she said. She was asking, not telling. "Please," I said. "Talk to her. Mom looks like dad did six months ago." She said she'd try. A week later, Adele was back.

"Well?" I said. She smiled and hid her face behind her hand. "I don't know how to say this exactly," she said. "Dad is chasing mom around the house." As proof of my density, I said: "What for?"

"He's getting sexy in his old age." "He's what? For God's sake, he can barely hobble to catch a bus." "I didn't say he caught momma, I said he's chasing her." Neither of us knew whether to applaud or burst into tears.

NOTRE DAME WAS playing USC in New York. I took Big John to the game. We talked around the scalloped edges of the subject. I didn't dare become familiar with him, but I said a guy reaches a time when he should give up chili and cigarettes and dancing all night and smiling at strange women and asking the barber to allow the hair to grow over the bald spot.

He agreed. Big John was solemn. "On the way home," he said, "let's stop at the doctor's house." We did. When the doctor opened the door, my old man handed him a half-bottle of pills.

"Doc," he said solemnly, "you're flogging a dead horse." . . .

AIM keeps media on their toes— sometimes by stepping on them

Charles B. Seib

One recent departure from the federal payroll will cause no joy in Mediaville. Reed Irvine has taken early retirement from his $44,000-a-year job with the Federal Reserve Board to devote full time to his own aggressive brand of press monitoring.

Irvine's name is not familiar to most customers of the news business, but it is well known in the media. It is particularly well known in the editorial offices and executive suites of the "New York-Washington axis" — the Washington Post, the New York Times, the networks and Time and Newsweek.

Irvine is the founder, chairman and driving force of Accuracy in Media, better known as AIM. It bills itself as a media watchdog devoted to "accuracy and fairness in reporting on critical issues facing America."

AIM TAKES THE position that the media have exercised their vast power in a biased and therefore dangerous way. Its avowed mission is to correct that bias, which it sees as having a decided leftward lean. In the process, it reveals a tilt to the right of its own.

Irvine started AIM eight years ago. In its early days it was a shoestring operation, making its points mainly in a torrent of letters to the editor.

Several years ago, in writing about a tiff between Irvine and columnist Jack Anderson, I reported that AIM's budget was about $60,000 a year. Now it is over $200,000 a year, and one staff member predicts it will soon cross the $250,000 mark. AIM does not disclose the source of its funds, except to say that they come mostly as small contributions from individuals.

Irvine puts pressure on the press in a variety of ways. He continues to be a prolific writer of letters to editors. He also writes a weekly column that he says is used "more or less regularly" in about 80 papers.

HE HAS BOUGHT stock in the Post, the Times and ABC, CBS and RCA (which owns NBC) and regularly attends stockholder meetings. There, he engages corporate brass in discussions of their shortcomings as AIM sees them. While these confrontations seldom are given much attention in the press, Irvine uses them to good effect in his semimonthly newsletter, AIM Report.

AIM's main public exposure is through paid newspaper ads, a device Irvine uses both to get his points across and raise funds. Sometimes the ads severely test news executives' commitment to a free and open press.

Early this year, when the Washington Post printed an Associated Press story on an AIM conference instead of a United Press International story that stressed attacks on the media and the Post, Irvine had an ad prepared. It featured the UPI story, with the word "CENSORED" blazoned across it. The Post swallowed hard and accepted the ad, which included an AIM fund-raising pitch.

More recently, Irvine tried to place an ad criticizing the Post's coverage of Orlando Letelier, a former Chilean cabinet minister who was murdered. The ad charged the Post with a "whitewash" in a report on documents found in Letelier's briefcase.

THE POST REJECTED the ad, claiming that it contained inaccurate, unsubstantiated and possibly libelous statements. The New York Times and the Washington Star also refused to carry it, and it eventually appeared in the eastern edition of the Wall Street Journal, slightly expurgated.

AIM now has a full-time staff of five, plus some part-time help, but the voice of AIM is still the voice of Reed Irvine. The ads, the letters, the Reports and, of course, his signed column, all bear his stamp.

The Reports probably give the best indication of his interests. Recent ones have dealt with the Letelier case, the Panama Canal treaties (AIM claims the press has been disgracefully soft on the treaties), articles on Cuba and Russia in the National Georgraphic and allegations of press neglect of Communist atrocities in Southeast Asia.

Going beyond his sepcific concerns, Irvine's concept of the role of the press in a free society probably was stated best in a speech last fall to Missouri journalists. He put the question: "Is it true that the freer the press is the more secure will all our freedoms be?"

HIS ANSWER WAS no. "No society is truly free without a free press, but the existence of a free press does not guarantee a free society. Unfortunately, history indicates that a free press may contribute to its own destruction and to the destruction of all other freedoms."

In other words, a free press is necessary but dangerous if misused. And is it being dangerously misused? Irvine thinks so: "There is some reason to question whether or not we have gone too far for our own good, perhaps creating a monster which may bring about the destruction of many of the freedoms we cherish, including the freedom of the press."

So Irvine and his colleagues are, in their view, out to save the press from itself. They are going about it zealously and ingeniously and, if the increased budget is any indication, with growing support.

To what effect? It sticks in my craw, but I'll say it: Irvine and his AIM are good for the press.

The same logic that says the institutions of government require a vigilant and critical press must also say that the press needs vigorous criticism, including the Irvine brand.

He is our carbuncle, and his function is to keep us in a state of healthy discomfort.

In world gone MAD, prof sees a hope of cooperation

by JONATHAN HARSCH

We live in a world of MAD — Mutual Assured Destruction, the military contingency planners' reassuring term for the nuclear overkill umbrella "sheltering" every corner of the globe today.

One young man determined to do something to reverse the wild plunge into ever greater levels of instant nuclear destruction is Harvard Prof. Daniel Yergin.

As a start, he went from Yale to earn a PhD from England's Cambridge University for a thesis on the international balance of power. As a researcher at Harvard, he turned this thesis into a major study of the history and consequences of cold war diplomacy.

HIS BOOK "Shattered Peace: The Origins of the Cold War and the National Security State," published last spring, added two new terms to the vocabulary of international politics.

The premise of the "Riga axioms," named for the Latvian city where U.S. diplomats watched Russia with great suspicion in the 1920s, is that the Soviet Union is a potential world dictatorship which must be contained at all costs.

The "Yalta axioms," named for the meeting held between Churchill, Stalin, and Roosevelt at the Crimean town in 1945, stand for the opposite premise that despite the terror tactics used inside Soviet borders, the U.S.S.R. behaves in traditional ways internationally.

According to the Yalta approach or detente, clearly favored by Yergin, the United States should deal with the Soviet Union as it deals diplomatically with any other power — by negotiating, trading off interests and using America's overwhelming economic power to win cooperation from the Russians.

To build U.S. policies on the Riga axioms, fearful of every Soviet move and responding in military terms to possible Soviet threats, is counterproductive says Yergin.

A TIRELESS researcher, Yergin can articulate the Riga position with ease. He readily quotes the main doctrine of today's leading Riga champion, the Committee on the Present Danger: "The principal threat to our nation, to world peace, and to the cause of human freedom is the unparalleled military buildup."

Yergin has watched closely as the Riga belief in an expansionist U.S.S.R. has colored American policies not just in Europe but in Africa and Asia. He has studied the arguments put forward by those who favor U.S. military expansion, such as Anthony Harrigan, vice-president of the United States Industrial Council, who has written: "The advanced, capitalist nations may be numerically inferior to countries such as India with explosive populations, but the Western states have means to maintain their position relative to the Third World."

One means to keep down third world millions is nuclear. But the effect of such an atempt to stem the tide of history in North-South politics will be the same as that in East-West politics, according to Yergin. The more the U.S. reacts in fear and the more it increases its nuclear arsenal, the more it drives first the Soviets and now smaller African and Asian countries into the same escalating tactics.

YERGIN HAS HIS own fears. "I think there is a complacency about the dangers of a nuclear war. People have become so used to it that it is an old familiar figure at the dinner table. People don't think about the reality of it, or they get involved in discussions about kill ratios, as though an all-out nuclear war could be some sort of rational exercise."

He says a nuclear holocaust has been avoided so far "because people have been cautious at the final moment, and because we have been lucky. I just wonder if people will continue to be lucky."

Adding to the risks are the nuclear power programs that have given nuclear-bombmaking potential today to 20 countries in addition to the six nuclear powers, the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, China, France, and India. 1985 could bring the number of potential bomb-makers to 40, says this Harvard lecturer on international systems and on the relationship between government policies, Arab oil prices and the spread of nuclear technology.

Darting with deft familiarity from country to country, Yergin sees the relative stability of the cold war period being replaced by far more dangerous and uncertain relationships, thanks to nuclear proliferation and new imbalances caused by the third world's huge populations and the Arab world's oil riches.

ANSWERS TO these challenges will not come, Yergin argues, unless we understand how foreign policy decisions were made during the watershed late 1940s. Government policies for the '70s and '80s will fail to meet the challenges unless they are based on a realistic understanding of all the forces involved.

Behind a winning smile, Yergin explains his interpretation of cold war politics does not assign blame. Serious mistakes were made, he believes, in Greece, West Germany, Korea, and Vietnam. Yet he adds that "a lot of historians and critics in international relations forget the difference between the writer now and the policymakers then, that we know how things came out, and they did not know. And they had such partial information and didn't have the time to sit around and think these things through.

There is a strong and reasonable tendency for statesmen and diplomats to go on the worst assumption, and the historian has the luxury of not doing that, because there are no longerlives, or elections, or world survival at stake."

In projected books, dealing perhaps with the Middle East, the third world, and the oceans as a focus of either cooperation or conflict, and — next off the presses — with energy, Yergin will be dealing directly with policy choices necessary for survival.

Second start calls women to till soil in technical fields

by ANNA MADRZYK

Phyllis Heerstel didn't become an engineer or a draftsman or a mechanic because when she was deciding what to be few women knew they could.

Like most of them, Ms. Heerstel went the traditional route. She became an English teacher — and didn't like it.

Now, with a master's degree in speech communication and a series of other jobs behind her, Ms. Heerstel is a warehouse trainee.

And — along with women like Jackie Schultz of Wheeling, a marine geology major who wants to learn a skill to use on a research ship, and Sue Haney, a Bartlett housewife who wants to return to work — Ms. Heerstel is donning safety glasses and protective headgear, running machines and learning about jobs usually held by men.

THE WOMEN ARE participants in Elgin Community College's Project Second Start, an eight-week program to acquaint women with job opportunities in four nontraditional fields — plastics, drafting, welding and machine tool operation.

If young women could be exposed to all types of career possibilities, "they'd make wiser choices and stay with a job," said Ms. Heerstel, an Elgin resident.

That's the purpose of Second Start, which provides career exploration rather than basic skills training, explained Donna Rudy, Elgin counselor who coordinates the program.

But since it also provides two full days of lab experience in each field, it should enable women to know what they like and enter a technical training program on a more equal footing with men.

SALARIES IN technical fields are generally higher than those in traditionally female occupations. In fact, a California automobile manufacturer listed an opening at Elgin for a female auto mechanic at a starting salary of $18,000 a year.

But despite the higher salaries and the increased number of openings for women because of federal equal opportunity laws, most are still choosing traditional occupations.

"That's fine as long as it's an informed choice or they attempted it and know they enjoy it," Ms. Rudy said. She just wants to help make sure they have a choice.

The total Second Start program is 14 hours a week with two weeks of study for each of the four fields.

IN ADDITION to the lab, the course includes field trips and information sessions for each area on Monday nights, and counseling sessions with Ms. Rudy, on Wednesdays or Thursdays.

There are also guest speakers like Jeanne Swanson, a sales representative for a firm that sells plastics colorants, who talked about the myriad opportunities for women in technical sales — and the ins and outs of getting along in a largely male field.

"It isn't that different to call on a man from Sunbeam or a man with one machine. They're basically like the men you talk to every day. They're not that formidable," Mrs. Swanson told the attentive students.

It's the counseling sessions that get down to some of the basic problems which may hold women back. Assertiveness and decision-making training are included, along with discussion of whether the women will be able to keep her feminine identity in a male-oriented occupation.

"I TRY TO GET them to look at being a female a little differently," Ms. Rudy said. "Being feminine is not an image, not a stereotype, but just being themselves — the way they want to be as people."

Ms. Rudy also plans to invite a panel of men to discuss feelings about women in industry, possibly videotaping it to make sure true feelings come out.

But Ms. Rudy found when she invited women in male-oriented occupations to talk about their work problems with men, most said they didn't have any — and the only problem seems to be men doing too much to help the women out.

Does a woman have to have any special characteristics to work in a male-dominated occupation?

"She just has to work harder and be better than most of the men," said plastics technology instructor Henry Tschappat, technical coordinator or Second Start.

"IT'S BASICALLY a fact of life. I would guess a lot of employers demand higher education and higher skills in women. This will wear off fairly fast," Tschappat said.

A woman in a supervisory position in traditionally male occupation has to be able to withstand opposition from both males and females, said Ray Kriske, plant manager at Elgin Molded Plastics and instructor for the plastics part of the course.

Although Elgin is the only area community college with a program specifically directed at acquainting women with nontraditional opportunities, both Harper and Oakton community colleges have workshops which expose women to some traditionally male fields.

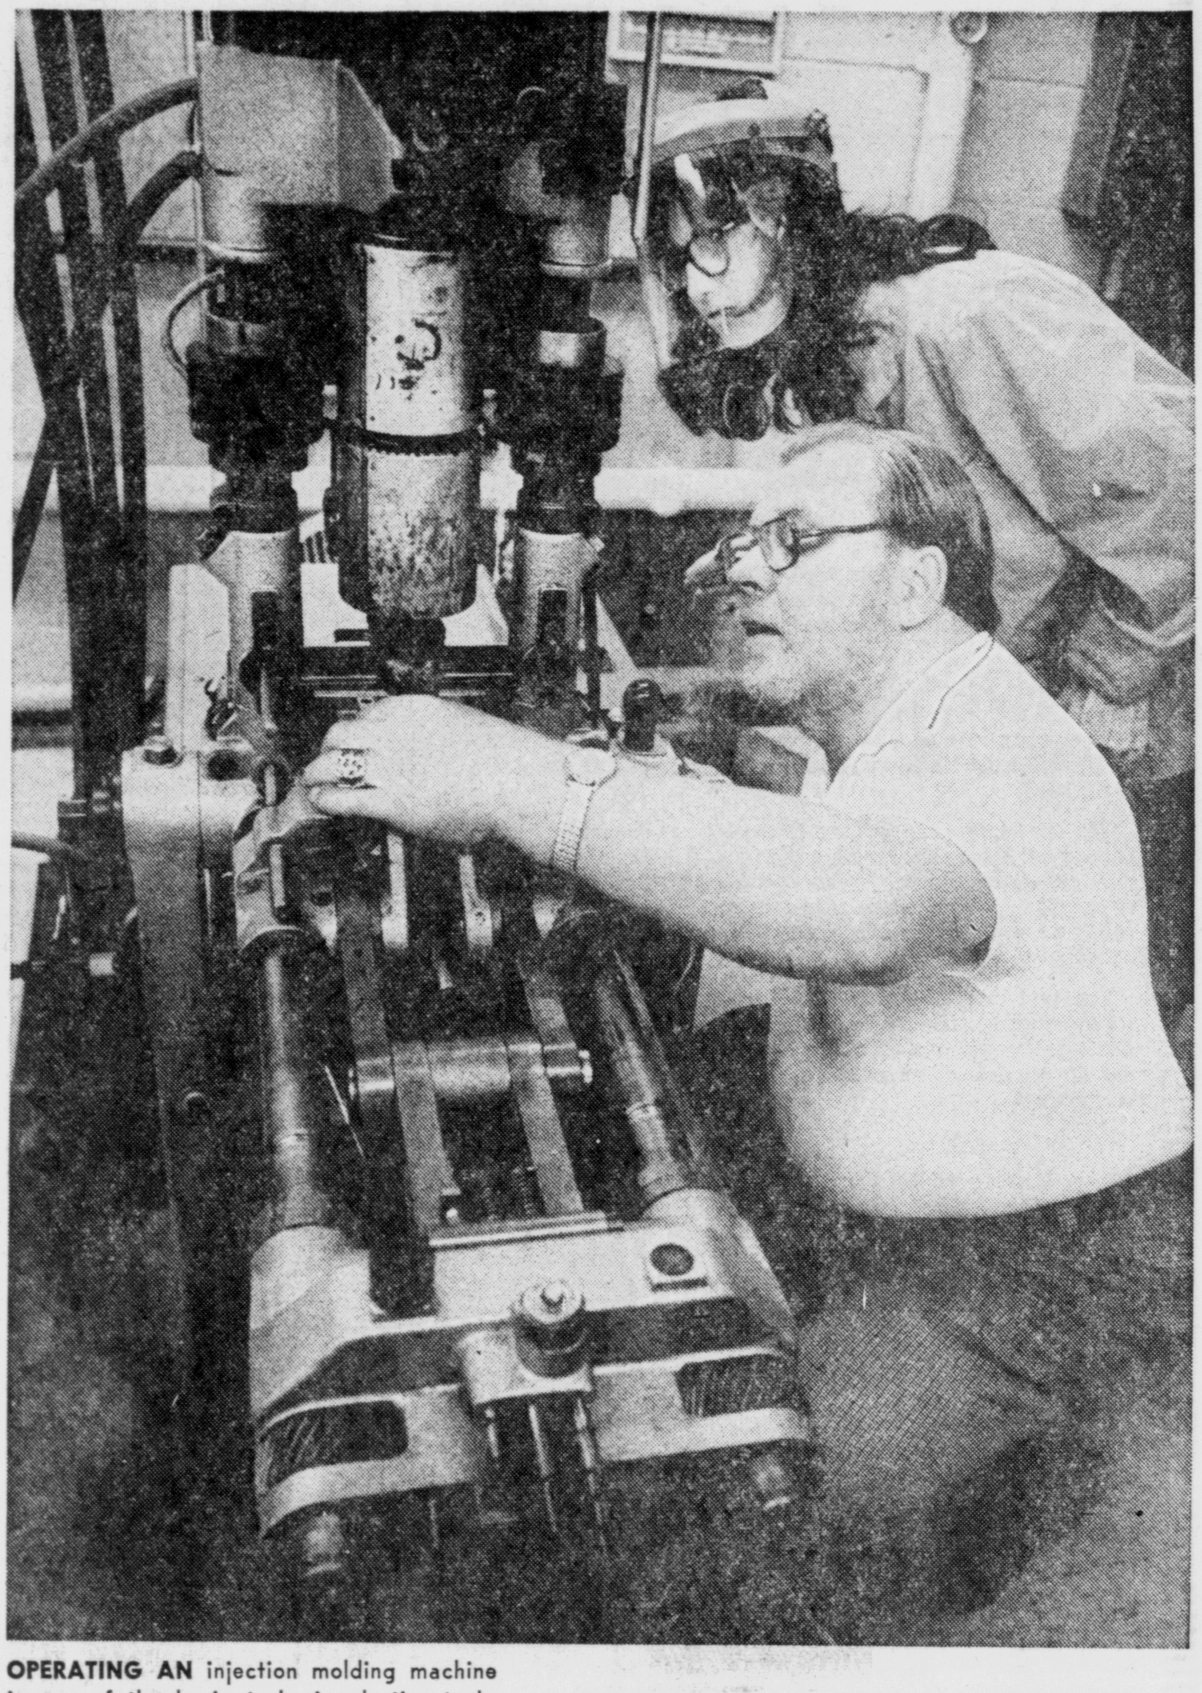
All three community colleges share the problem of low female enrollment in technical programs.

HARPER HAS A program, "The Woman as a Manager," to help women who are interested in management. Oakton has an ongoing series of career counseling sessions, which include workshops on making decisions and identifying skills.

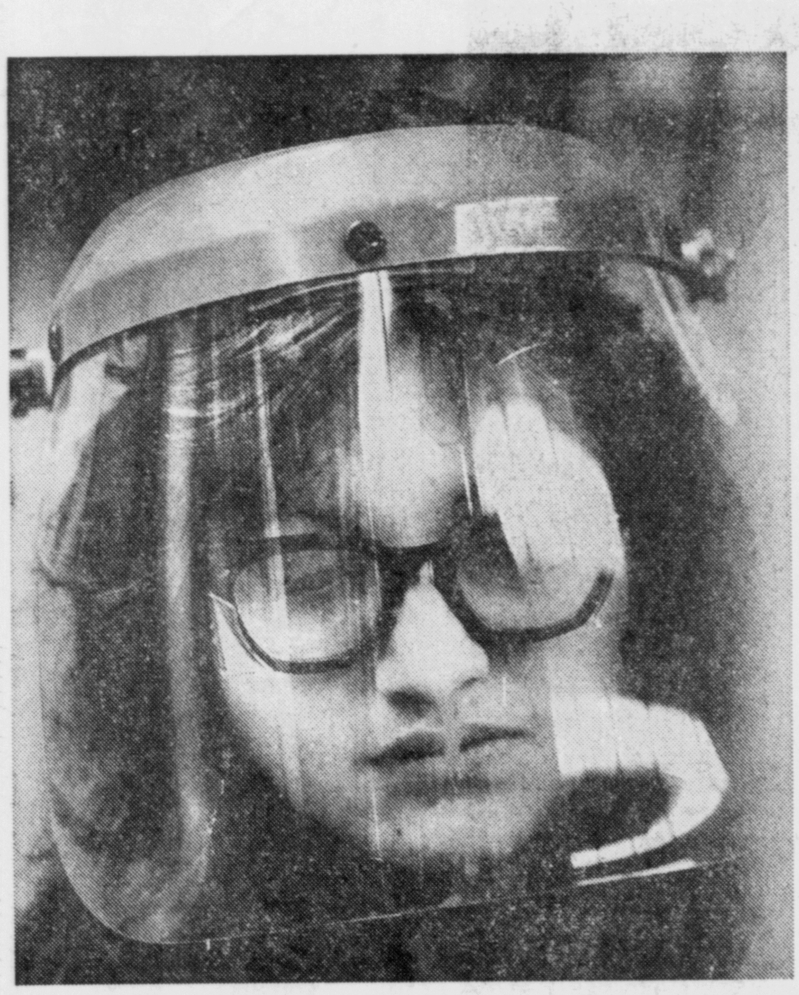
An all-day career day at Oakton includes female representatives from fields such as sales, computers, management and business.

Fee for the Elgin course, funded by a $50,000 federal grant, is $19 which includes the lab fee. A second eight-week session will begin Jan. 23.

There are many opportunities for women in all technical fields, Kriske said. And that's because "women can do anything they really want to do."



OPERATING AN injection molding machine is one of the basic tasks in plastics technology. Elgin Community College instructor Henry Tschappat shows Norma Perez, a part-time Elgin college instructor enrolled in Second Start, how the machine works.



PROTECTIVE HEADGEAR and safety glasses, like those worn by Norma Perez, are typical work gear in some traditionally male fields.

NORMA PEREZ made the molded plastic tray in the Second Start lab. Plastics is an open field for women, with more than 2,000 firms in northern Illinois alone, Elgin instructor Henry Tschappat said. Elgin had its first female plastics program graduate last June.

Preventing accidents at home job of all families

by BARBARA HACKMAN FRANKLIN

(Fourth in a series)

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Accidents in and around the home have moved to the foreground as a major family health problem.

An estimated 20 million Americans are hurt each year in accidents associated with ordinary household and recreational products. About 110,000 persons are permanently disabled, and 30,000 are killed.

Many of those hurt are very young children who can't read labels, don't perceive potential dangers and don't have full physical coordination and control. The cost to the nation is said to be $5.5 billion. The cost in suffering and anguish is staggering.

How do we solve a problem of this magnitude?

The responsibility rests with us all — industry, consumers and government. Happily, especially in recent years, considerable progress has been made. But much more is needed. And, as I see it, women can provide the critical impetus.

WOMEN, WHETHER or not they work outside the home, usually manage the household, make most day-to-day purchasing decisions and are primary users of many consumer products. Women supervise children's activities and know first-hand how youngsters use — and misuse — products. In short, women can wield tremendous clout in assuring product safety in the marketplace and in helping to prevent accidents in and around the home.

What can you do? First, recognize that you and your family have a right to product safety. Since 1962 every U.S. president has set forth the "consumer bill of rights." It includes the right to make meaningful, informed choices; the right to be heard — and the right to be assured you receive safe products.

Each right implies a responsibility, also. If products are unsafe or just "don't work," let the manufacturer, the retailer and the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission know about it. Equally important, let companies know when you think they do make, sell and advertise products with safety as a major factor.

SECOND, CHECK for safety features before you buy. Is the product appropriate for the intended use and user? Is it the right size? Does it have a set of clear safety instructions? Refuse to buy unsafe products.

Third, use, store and maintain products with safety in mind. Always read the label and follow instructions carefully. Take into account hazards such as flammability, toxicity or sharp parts.

In homes with children, make certain medicines, cleaners and poisonous substances are in safety packaging and stored out of reach. Perhaps children should be restricted from the area where you use certain products. Be sure to discard broken toys before they injure your child.

Fourth, take a home safety inventory. Are glass doors and panels marked with decals so that people can see them? Are space heaters, fireplaces and other heat sources guarded?

IN HOMES WITH young children, are staircases guarded at the top with a securely latched gate? Do unused outlets have safety plugs? Are electric cords out of the way so they can't be pulled or tripped over?

Fifth, be prepared in case an accident occurs. Accidents aren't just "something which happen to somebody else" — they can happen to you and your family.

All parents should have at least a basic first aid course. You can find out about courses available locally from the Red Cross or scouting groups. It's also a good idea to have available a first aid chart with instructions about how to deal with home accidents.

You can get just a chart free. Just send your name and address to the Council on Family Health, Department FAS, 633 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017. For additional information, write the Consumer Product Safety Commission, Washington, D.C. 20207. And, keep a list of emergency numbers — doctors, ambulance, hospital, fire department, drug store and local poison control center — by the phone.

SIXTH, LEND your support — and leadership — to home safety efforts in your community. Unfortunately, the general level of safety awareness among consumers is low. Get involved to help change this attitude — and the sobering accident statistics.

Every family can use help in adopting better safety habits. And no company or product on the marketplace is immune to the collective efforts of women to assure safer products at a reasonable price.

The doctor says

Arteries can function partially blocked

My husband had a heart bypass operation. They told us one artery was completely blocked, two were partially blocked. They only did the one artery that was completely blocked and never explained why they didn't do all three.

Also I would like to know if there is cholesterol in veal liver?

A limited amount of obstruction of an artery does not decrease the blood flow through it. As long as 70 per cent of the opening is there the fatty cholesterol deposits won't make that much difference.

There is a critical level of blockage that starts causing problems. The doctors probably felt on the basis of what they could see at the operation that a bypass around the partially blocked arteries would not significantly improve your husband's circulation to the heart.

You can improve his condition by helping him eliminate or avoid obesity and having him on the proper diet. If he smokes he should stop. The sucess of many bypass operations depends on what kind of program a person follows after surgery. If the person persists in eating the wrong foods, being obese and smoking, the end result is not good.

Yes, veal liver contains cholesterol, about 300 milligrams in a 100 gram (three and a half ounce) portion of raw liver. That small serving alone will take up all the allowed cholesterol for the whole diet for one day. All forms of liver are moderately high in cholesterol content.

I am 26 years old but the growth of hair on my chest is very scarce. There is more hair on the right half of my chest than on the left. Is there some way that more hair will develop on my left side or on my upper chest as a whole? Is there a chemical imbalance that may create this problem? Would cutting or shaving the hair I have create more?

The hair growth in other areas is adequate although not in large quantities even in the pubic region. I hope you can give me some advice to help.

The best advice I can give you is to forget about it. I suspect your friends don't even notice it.

Before you have hair on the body you have to have hair follicles. It is an inherited characteristic for some people to have fewer follicles than others.

A nomal male in all respcts may have little hair on the body. Some rare males are born with no significant amounts of hair anywhere, so hormones are not the answer.

Shaving your sparse hair will not help. It might cause your skin to itch but that is about all. What hair there is may be shorter and stiffer like a stubble but when it grows out it will be the same Cutting hair does not affect its growth despiet the old idea that it stimulates growth. I presume you have an adequate amount of hair on your head. Be glad you have it there rather than on your body.

Freezing easy way to get nut from shell

Dear Roberts: I've read three different tips on how to shell nuts easily and remove the nutmeats whole. One advised to put them in a hot oven first. Another said to freeze them. And my cookbook says to pour boiling water over them. Aren't these instructions contrary? What do you say? —Mrs. C. R. Hardin.

Any of these methods will work. I prefer freezing nuts for at least a couple of days shelling them while still frozen. That way there's no risk of unwanted water entering the shell, or of accidentally roasting them, either.

Dear Roberta: I panicked last week when our appliance service said we would have to wait "several days" for parts for our fizzled-out stove. The four of us are doing just fine, thank you, with a toaster oven, hot plate, and coffee maker. Breakfast consists of cereal and boiled or poached eggs, with beverage. Lunch is canned soup and sandwiches. And for dinner we have a vegetable, salad, and a main course from leftovers frozen and reheated in foil freezer containers. When the foil dinners run out I figure we can still avoid restaurants by shopping carefully. —Rosemary Hufford.

Panne velvet ideal for knit patterns

Dear Eunice Farmer: I recently saw some beautiful velvet cloth with which I would like to make a dinner dress. However, the cloth has a sheen and is knitted and I don't know how to handle it. Can you help? — Mrs. C. A.

Dear Mrs. C. A.: The type of velvet you are referring to is called panne velvet and is a return of an old favorite. You'll be seeing lots of it in ready-to-wear.

Since this fabric is a knit, you must choose your pattern carefully. Select one that says, "Suitable for knits" or "For knits only." Panne velvet can be carefully hand-washed or dry cleaned, so choose a pattern with very few seams and details. Never underline this fabric, as it would lose its drapability and cause the seams to pucker.

A fine ballpoint needle is used for machine stitching panne velvet. However, before you cut the cloth, check the direction of its nap. Unlike corduroys, velvets and velveteens that ordinarily have the nap going up, I prefere the nap to go down. In other words, I like the fabric smooth to the touch when I run my hand from the shoulder to the hem. Experiment with the length of stitch on your scraps. Be sure to keep the fabric taut as it feeds through the machine by holding your hand firmly in front and back of the needle as you stitch.

Often, your seams will have a tendency to curl inward. To avoid this, overlock stitch through both layers of fabric. This should be done within the seam allowance, before cutting off the excess.

Try to machine-stitch long seams in the direction of the nap. Never try to top-stitch this fabric. Hems can be blind-stitched loosely by hand or with your machine. Don't, however, use hem tape or lace on the edge of the hem, as it would restrict the knit.

It is probably best to have your dry cleaners press your garment after it has been completed. However, if you need to press any part of it, always press on the wrong side of the fabric. (Place a piece of the panne velvet on your board so that when you are pressing you have the two layers of velvet touching each other on their nap sides.)

Dear Eunice Farmer: How can I adjust the butline darts on a size 16 pattern that was drafted for a size 10 bust? — Mrs. V. S.

Dear Ms. V. S.: This is a problem for many women since patterns are cut for a B-cup size. Also, most patterns fail to note that the fuller or larger the bust, the deeper the shaping darts should be.

There is one very good sewing aid on the market that is a great help when altering bustline designs. This advice, "Adjust-A-Dart," is distributed by Fashionetics, Inc., and you should be able to find it in most fabric shops and notions departments.

To add one word of advice, let me note that for fuller busts it is usually necessary to lower the bustline shaping darts. Hence, you must measure from the shoulder to the largest part of your bust and use this as a guide to your new darts.

Dear Readers: This is the time of year when everyone is searching for patterns and fabrics for a coat. Since I've had so many reader requests for pattern suggestions, I'll mention one I really like.

Butterick No. 5078 is a super pattern for almost any type of fabric and for most everyone. It has high raglan sleeves making it easy to put on over sweaters and jackets. However, the sleeves fit high enough under the arms that you don't look thick and bulky.

This pattern buttons to the neckline, but if you prefer a lapel look, you can eliminate the top button and buttonhole. It can be very casual with epaulets, tiny belts on the sleeves and large patch pockets, or you can eliminate these and wear belted or unbelted.

This week's winner of the gold blazer buttons is Kay F. Martin, 63 Durham Rd., San Anselmo, Calif., 94960. Her tip:

"I have found that a yardstick is just the right width to slide into those long ties for pressing. It's an easy way to get a neat, crisp look to those hard-to-reach spots."

You, too, could be a winner of the gold blazer buttons. Send your sewing tips to Eunice Farmer Box 4994, Des Moines, Iowa 50306, and if she publishes your bit of advice, Mrs. Farmer will send you a set.

For your copy of the Sew Simple booklet "All About Sleeves," send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Eunice Farmer at the address given above.

Weddings

Margaret Goggin–Gregory Pahr

When Margaret Ann Goggin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Goggin III, became the bride of Gregory Kurt Pahr, her father sang to her as he gave her in marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pahr of Roselle. The selection was "Sunrise, Sunset."

Margaret and Gregory were married Sept. 10 in Queen of the Rosary Church in Elk Grove Village. Kim Brunke, Schaumburg, was Margaret's matron of honor, and bridesmaids were Barbara Angrist, Carbondale, Kathleen Schnoeblen, Chicago, and Renee Powell, Des Plaines.

Bob Rolff, Elgin, was best man, and ushers were Gregg Schnoeblen, Chicago, Bruce Brede, Schaumburg, and the groom's cousin, Rick Benes, Sleepy Hollow.

THE 3 P.M. DOUBLE ring service was followed by a reception for 125 guests at The Camelot in Rosemont, after which the newlyweds left to honeymoon in Colorado.

A '75 graduate of Conant High, the bride is employed by Chem-Lawn in Schaumburg, and the groom, a '71 graduate of Harper College, is with Sears, Roebuck and Co., Woodfield Shopping Center. The pair, who met when Margaret was also employed at Sears, are making their home in Schaumburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory K. Pahr

Deborah Garland–Allen Besander

Yellow and brown was the color scheme for the Sept. 24 wedding of Deborah Lynn Garland to Allen Jay Besander, with the bridal attendants in yellow, the groomsmen in brown tuxes. The double ring, 4:30 p.m. ceremony took place at First United Methodist Church, Arlington Heights.

Deborah is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Garland, Arlington Heights, and Allen the son of the James A. Besanders of Palatine.

The bride wore a full-length white polyester knit gown with cotton lace trim. Her fingertip veil fell from a lace headband. She carried a nosegay of white gladioli, white roses, and yellow baby's breath.

Karen Garland of Rolling Meadows attended her sister as matron of honor, and the groom's sister, Wendy; Mary Ann Geary, Arlington Heights; and Wendy Micek, Hoffman Estates, were bridesmaids.

THE GIRLS' yellow polyester knit gowns had detachable capes. In their nosegay bouquets were yellow gladioli, rust button mums and dried baby's breath. Each girl wore a flower cluster in her hair.

Serving the groom was best man Larry Kamper, Schaumburg, and groomsmen John Garland, Madison, Wis., the bride's brother; and Bill and Brian Cardott, Palatine. Following the ceremony, 130 guests were served dinner in Fellowship Hall of the church.

The newlyweds are living in Palatine, after a week's honeymoon at Lake Barkley, Ky. Deborah, a 1975 graduate of Arlington High School, works at Littelfuse, Des Plaines. Allen graduated from Fremd in 1974, attended Harper College and is now employed by Motorola in Schaumburg.

'Peanuts' lifelong dream for Schulz

Charles Schulz has decided that after 27 years, it's time for the perpetual American kid, Charlie Brown to get his first kiss from the mysterious little, red-haired girl.

But, don't think that this means wedding bells for old Chuck, Schulz warns, because any one of the Peanuts gang has limitations as a kid. The characters 55-year-old Schulz created as a young art instructor in Minneapolis are resigned to eternal youth.

"It's Your First Kiss, Charlie Brown," which airs at 7 p.m. today on Channel 2, will be the 16th animated television special featuring Schulz's world popular cartoon characters.

THAT SAME LITTLE, round-faced "Peanut" who brought viewers 999 straight baseball losses, non-valentines, jelly beans for Thanksgiving and an elusive magic pumpkin rising out of the pumpkin patch at Halloween turns his talents to football and romance this time around with the little red-haired girl we've heard so much about and never seen.

"I felt that it was time for Charlie Brown to get romantic. You know you have to continue doing things with these specials that will get attention," Schulz says, "that's the nature of television."

There is a lot of strain and pressure involved in turning out a daily comic strip that appears in 1,800 newspapers throughout the world and periodic television specials, Schulz admits.

HE READS magazines and novels and spends as much time as possible talking with his children, now in their 20s, and their friends to keep his ideas for the comic strip "fresh."

"There are days when I think I can't come up with anything new anymore, but I love my work. Oh, someday I'll throw my hands up in the air and say 'that's it' and just quit. But, not right now," Schulz says.

Everytime he thinks of retirement, Schulz remembers the days back in Minneapolis when he was a struggling art instructor, selling his cartoons on the side to magazines. He had sold 15 cartoons to the Saturday Evening Post when the United Features Syndicate in New York suggested he create a comic strip for them.

"I DISCOVERED I was best at drawing children, so I started out with a bland sort of boy with a round face and called him Charlie Brown after a friend of mine who was also an art instructor," he says. "Snoopy was created after a dog I once had as a boy. My mother always said if we had another dog we'd call it Snoopy. Well, we never had another one, but I gave her this dog and he'll last forever."

The other Peanuts characters developed gradually — Peppermint Patty, Franklin, Lucy, Linus — until there were about 30 that Schulz alternates in his strip and television specials today.

"I created each of them by just doodling on paper, but I named most of them after someone I knew. Each new character eventually develops its own personality. They are very strong personalities that dictate what I will do with them," he says.

THIRTEEN YEARS ago Lee Mendelson, who has produced all of the Peanuts television specials, suggested to Schulz that his characters make the transition from the newspaper comic strip to television animation.

"We had a hard time selling it to the television people back then, but Coca Cola decided to take a gamble with it and our first television show was the Christmas special that has aired every year since then for the past 13 years," Schulz says.

"IT'S YOUR FIRST KISS, CHARLIE BROWN"

The only changes that had to be made when the comic strip was transferred from newspaper to film were in Snoopy.

"Snoopy talks to himself on paper, and even though Peanuts is a children's fantasy, it would be difficult to have the dog talking to himself on film. So, the television Snoopy makes noises and is involved in more actions instead," he says.

SCHULZ SAYS his cartoon strip has remained intact over the years and that, where an adult has given the Peanuts characters life, it has been child actors who have given them voice on television.

"It's Your First Kidd, Charlie Brown" will be followed by another new Peanuts special in February entitled "What A Nightmare, Charlie Brown" which will feature only Schulz's two original characters, Charlie Brown and Snoopy. The story line is his best yet as Snoopy is hijacked and forced to become part of an Alaskan dog sled team.

"Every once and a while, you have to go back to the basics, to the heart and soul of the strip because you tend to drift away from it over the years," he says.

"The reason that Peanuts has been so successful is that we've managed to stay faithful to the original characters and ideas."

The man who made Snoopy a household word, to his own surprise, spends close to 60 hours a week in his Santa Rosa studio not far from his home and the ice arena he built, making millions on his "Peanuts."

"It's like an athlete who dreams of winning at the Olympics or an actor who dreams of winning an Academy Award," Schulz says. "I was a little boy who dreamed of drawing a comic strip and it turns out the one I drew has become a permanent part of American cartoon history and the most popular in the world. It's even hard for me to believe."

ON ITS FIRST American tour, the 10-year-old Israel Ballet came to the Auditorium Theatre Saturday and Sunday bringing guest stars Charles Ward of the American Ballet Theatre and Anna Aragno of Italy. The couple performed two pas de deux, while the company performed a variety of numbers.

Israel Ballet needs step in right direction

Review

by LYNN ASINOF

The handbills distributed at the Chicago Auditorium Theater said the Israel Ballet needs money, but judging from the performance Saturday night what the company really needs is strong artistic direction.

The 25 dancers, despite solid techniques, contented themselves with three superficial ballets that relied on trite and hackneyed themes. That was disappointing, particularly since the two-day weekend visit was Chicago's first look at the young company.

Although the Israel Ballet is just 10 years old, the properly placed bodies for the dances showed there is no need for the troupe to rely on such unchallenging material.

FOR EXAMPLE, "Electrobach," choreographed by Felix Blaska, had a bubblegum look instead of the steel precision needed to complement the electronic version of Bach's intricate melodies.

The choreography was punctuated with corny poses and lots of wide-eyed innocence. And dancers looked up from their poses with empty headed grins as if to say "isn't this cute."

It wasn't. Pamela Osserman, with a cheerful grin pasted on her face, looked like a syncopated cheerleader. None of the dancers managed to make the choreography look tricky instead of cute.

In "Sweet Agony" by Gene Hill Sagan, the theme was different but equally simplistic. Set to the acid rock of Jimi Hendrix and an introspective piece by Richie Havens, the company tackled the search for identity.

FOR ENDLESS minutes, the audience watched arches of female bodies flung across the stage while virile Israeli men jumped, turned and leaped. The piece showed dancers could move, but there was no message.

Somehow, the Israeli dancers haven't learned how to put shading into their movements. They have no subtlety. Love doesn't ache, anger doesn't smolder and alienation doesn't hurt in this company.

"Opus 35" by Heinz Spoerli, the most interesting piece of the evening, never managed to rise above its rag doll cuteness to become clever. Once again, empty headed smiles and corny poses were supposed to accent the youthful energy of the company. At times, "Opus 35" hinted of "Godspell," but neither the company nor the choreography had enough direction to give the piece real flavor.

THE CLASSICAL numbers of the evening were left to guest artists Charles Ward of the American Ballet Theatre, who replaced originally scheduled Edward Villella and Anna Aragno of Italy.

Originally scheduled to dance the "White Swan" pas de deux and the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet," the program was cut short when Miss Aragno was injured.

As a result, the audience saw only Ward partnering an unsure Aragno in a pleasant but uninspiring "White Swan."

Since Saturday's performance was a fund-raiser for the American Jewish Congress it wasn't surprising the Israel ballet also distributed flyers asking for contributions.

A donation would be well worth while if the extra money would buy the company some artistic interpretation and better choreography.

'Miss Beautiful' scooped by news

by JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — NBC has a hijacking movie with an incredible plot — or at least it seemed incredible until recent events on Frontier Airlines proved again that truth was stranger than fiction.

The NBC film is titled "The Night They Took Miss Beautiful," and it goes on the air today at 8 p.m. on channel 5.

The plot concerns the hijacking of a chartered airplane carrying five beauty contest winners and their entourage from Miami to the finals pageant in Nassau. The three hijackers are ex-convict murderers who are in the hijack business for profit. They demand $1 million per beauty contestant.

CHUCK CONNORS as the Miami airport security chief is about to go into action when the mysterious guys in business suits and sunglasses take over.

They are from the CIA or some such superspy group, and one of their couriers is on board with enough deadly virus to kill the population of the world. The lethal vial is disguised as a cigar. One of the agents aboard is disguised as a dead-heading pilot, the other as Miss Isreal.

The scenes with Connors and the CIA types are deadly and include dialogue such as CIA No. 1 to CIA No. 2 about Connors: "If we leave him behind he could spring a leak and sink the whole ship of state."

The scenes in the deserted building on a Florida Cay where the hijackers hold their victims prisoner, on the other hand, build to taut suspense, thanks to the acting talents of the hijackers. They are Sheree North in shorts and sneakers as an at least part-time lesbian strung out and whacky for lack of drugs; Jonathan Banks, who puts really sinister viciousness into a droopy-eyed, dopey killer, and Gregory Sierra (formerly Chano on "Barney Miller") as the lead hijacker.

Phil Silvers and Henry Gibson put in delightful performances, little more than cameos in length.

U.S. funds may make rubber rail crossings a silky smooth reality

RUBBER RAILROAD crossings, such as this one in Charleroi, Pa. can eliminate many of the driver complaints brought on by worn-out wooden crossings. The only drawback is price.

by JOHN N. FRANK

Every day Northwest Suburban motorists coax their cars over rickety, worn-out wooden or asphalt railroad crossings, hoping nothing is ripped off the bottoms of their cars.

But now an old product is resurfacing as an answer to the railroad crossing blues and the availability of federal funding may make it as common as the crossings themselves.

The Elk Grove Village offices of Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. and General Tire & Rubber Co. are marketing crossings made of rubber slabs which assure a smoother crossing than wood or asphalt and, most important to villages and railroads, require almost no maintanence work for 20 years or more.

THE PARK RUBBER CO., Lake Zurich also has recently entered the market, working on one crossing in Lake Zurich and another in Houston, Tex.

Residents of Arlington Heights will see the first rubber crossing in the Northwest suburbs when the Chicago & North Western Ry. installs one at McKinley Avenue. Work is already in progress on the crossing.

"We always had the expense of constant maintenance on our crossings," explains Mike Hughes of the Downers Grove engineering department. This year, Downers Grove decided to spend more than $210,000 to install three rubber crossings and eliminate that maintenance problem, he said.

"At one of our crossings you really couldn't go across at more than 5 mph before. Now you can go across it at 40 mph, the speed limit," Hughes said.

NO ONE IN the industry or in railroad engineering departments disputes the efficiency and durability of the rubber crossings. But they have not become common since Goodyear installed the first one 23 years ago in Connecticut. There are 52 in the Chicago area. The reason is the price.

"Even today it is probably twice as expensive per rail foot as wood or wood-asphalt combinations," said John Perdwyn, a Goodyear Chicago spokesman. Goodyear sells its crossings for about $223 per track foot while General sells its model for between $225 to $240 per track foot.

"For years the railroads have been hard-pressed financially and so they're reluctant to spend the dollars for rubber," said Donald Dean, General's Industrial sales manager.

But the 1976 Federal Highway Act provides 90 per cent federal funding for crossing improvements until 1981 and both rubber firms are hopeful the availability of that money will produce a boom in their business.

The Burlington Northern, which serves Downers Grove, has committed itself to more rubber crossings.

The C & NW has installed one rubber crossing and found it everything it was supposed to be, said Henry Hahn, a C &NW official.

"It's probably the best that we've every installed. We have had fewer complaints on rubber than on any other type of crossing," Hahn said.

So Northwest suburban drivers take heart. Those bumpy crossings you battle every day may soon be gone, replaced with ribbons of rubber.

Business briefs

Import steel less, no effect at home

The growing demand in the United States to reduce steel imports has had little effect on the domestic market, according to Iron Age magazine. "Orders refuse to pick up," the magazine quotes a steel company market analyst as saying. The magazine says the backog of orders at one mill is shrinking and a downturn next month is indicated, while officials at another mill think they may be looking at the beginning of an upturn in November. Officials at U.S. Steel plants "are not surprised" at the possibility of a cut in imports, adding that domestic users "have probably been getting more steel than they want."

Theory predicts 1980s depression

Jane Bryant Quinn

Staying ahead

NEW YORK — This is a story about an economic theory that may or may not be true. If it is, another Great Depression will take hold sometime in the 1980s.

The theory says that there's a cycle to economic events, not just the short-term, three to four-year business cycle that is all too familiar, but a "long wave" of economic expansion and contraction. This wave was first described in the mid-1920s by a Russian economist, N. D. Kondratieff.

More work was done in the 1930s, but after that the theory fell into disrepute. Since the end of World War II, we have come to believe in permanent expansion, whereas Kondratieff argued that all great expansions are inevitably followed by periods of great decline.

KONDRATIEFF STUDIED the periodic rise and fall of wholesale commodity prices, interest rates, wages, foreign trade and other data. His charts begin around the year 1780 and cover portions of the economic history of France, England, Germany and the United States.

He found a long cycle in economic events, lasting an average of 52 years. The cycle showed 20-odd years of rising prices and interest rates, accompanied by prosperity, business expansion and free trade. At the end of the upswing came an inflationary blow-off. Then followed 30-odd years of declining prices and interest rates, rising trade barriers and business contraction, including a wicked depression.

When Kondratieff postulated the long wave in the mid-1920's, he had recorded only two and a half cycles. Inflationary price peaks fell around the years 1814, 1864 and 1920, with low points around 1843 and 1896. The 1930s depression completed the third wave. If the cycle is indeed a cycle, the fourth upward swing came in the 1950s and 1960s, culminating in the frightening inflation of the early 1970s.

From that point on, price inflation should gradually fall. Long-wave declines are interrupted by periodic upturns in inflation during business-cycle recoveries, but each peak is lower than the preceding peak. Inflation slowly, slowly zigzigs down to zero.

UNFORTUNATELY the deflationary forces on the downside have, in the past, been just as strong and intractable as the inflationary forces were on the upside. Over a period of 15 years or so, the inflation rate gradually drops to zero, but it doesn't stop there. It goes into deflation — falling prices — and that's what wipes out business. It's hard to believe or remember now, but in the 1930s the term "price controls" didn't mean price ceilings. It meant price supports — a desperate attempt on the part of government to halt the collapse of commerce.

It's too early to tell if Kondratieff was right. Perhaps the modern theories of money, the Federal Reserve and fisical and monetary policy have repealed lengthy depressions forever, or limited their severity (although the 1970 and 1974 declines could be considered evidence to the contrary.)

One point of interest for "long wave" buffs: a financial historian once traced the price of wheat back to the year 1300 and the approximate 50-year cycle of rising and falling prices appeared to operate throughout. It's also of interest that the rate of increase in wholesale commodity prices has been falling for the past four years.

One theory links the Kondratieff wave to significant changes in world-wide weather patternsn, like droughts and monsoons, which affect the price and availability of food. For example, there appears to be a U. S. drought cycle of roughly 20 years, but little theoretical work has been done on its possible connection to long-term economic changes.

Still others believe that the long wave is no more than a statistical illusion, and perhaps they're right. The next 10 years may settle the matter, once and for all.

Taking less in pay boosts may hike spending: expert

by JOHN N. FRANK

American workers should accept less pay to end up with more spending money. That's the message Paul J. Wells, economics professor at the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana, is trying to get out.

"The major cause of inflation in the United States since 1969 has been the wage-price spiral," Wells said.

People fear inflation will eat up their wage increases, so they ask for more to counteract inflation. But that only leads to more inflation, Wells said.

IN AN ARTICLE appearing in the Illinois Business Review, Wells proposes a 3 per cent ceiling on all annual wage increases, coupled with a $30 billion cut in federal income taxes.

"Suppose you have the choice of a tax reduction coupled with a 3 per cent wage increase with no inflation. That increase is a permanent wage gain. Compare that with a 6 per cent increase in income with inflation. That is a transitory gain. A permanent increase of 3 per cent is a lot better than a transitory increase of 6 per cent," Wells said.

Once unions accept the 3 per cent figure, businesses can gain certainty in planning their annual expansion because they will know how much people's buying power will expand, Wells said.

"Uncertainty is the enemy of all things," especially business, Wells said.

Allowing business to plan orderly expansion, in turn will allow for the gradual reduction of unemployment down to the so-called "full employment" level, which Wells defines as a 5 per cent jobless rate.

"BY PUTTING people back to work, you're eliminating a great deal of waste. We have a mountain of waste sitting in front of us, $100 billion a year due to unemployment," Wells said.

But more people working would produce inflationary demands for goods if the nation's money supply isn't increased. So Wells proposes a yearly 4 to 5 per cent increase in the money supply.

His system, developed in last two years, seems simple and Wells said he wonders why other economists haven't come up with it.

"Economists are always making excuses for unemployment. Instead of fiddling around with a lot of fancy stuff we should look at what is right in front of our faces, huge massive waste," Wells said.

There is one element which could upset Wells' carefully devised system, however, something he calls "outside inflation."

"If the Shah of Iran and other OPEC countries started a series of yearly boosts in oil prices, that would feed the start of another wage-price spiral," he said. If that occurs, Wells may have to come up with a new theory.

WHEREAS, the President and Board of Trustees have considered said bids and have determined that the acceptance of the bid proposal from Crane Construction Company, Inc. and Development Control Corporation is in the best interests of the Village of Arlington Heights;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE PRESIDENT AND BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE VILLAGE OF ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS:

SECTION ONE: That the bid proposal of the Crane Construction Company, Inc. and Development Control Corporation for the purchase of the property hereinbefore described, which property is located between Dunton Avenue and Vail Avenue and consists of approximately 26,000 square feet in the sum of TWO HUNDRED EIGHT THOUSAND DOLLARS ($208,000.00) be and it is hereby accepted subject to the terms and conditions hereinafter set forth.

SECTION TWO: The acceptance of the bid of Crane Construction Company, Inc. and Development Control Corporation is subject to the following terms and conditions:

1. The previously-described real estate is to be improved by the purchaser, together with additional property hereinafter described, through construction of a multi-story office and commercial building containing no less than 100,000 square feet of net rentable retail space on two levels, in addition to an interior mall of approximately 30,000 square feet in the center of those said two levels, plus no less than 90,000 square feet of gross lease area office space, exclusive of off-street parking facilities.

2. The height of such building, as finally designed, should it exceed 90 feet, will be made permissible through the granting of a variation in accordance with the Zoning Ordinance of the Village of Arlington Heights.

3. Crane Construction Company, Inc. shall undertake the construction of a parking structure to be constructed on property adjacent to the subject property, which construction shall take place pursuant to a contract with the Village of Arlington Heights, and which parking structure shall be paid for by the Village of Arlington Heights through issuance of revenue bonds and community development funds which the purchaser is prepared to assist in obtaining. To the extent possible, the parking structure shall be constructed simultaneously with the privately-financed enclosed shopping mall and office complex to be constructed on the subject property in order to provide uniformity of appearance, access from the parking structure to the improvement, effect economies of construction and centralize responsibility for joint construction.

4. The proposed improvement of the subject property and contiguous property hereinafter referred to shall confirm in all respects with the Zoning Ordinance and Building Code of the Village of Arlington Heights, except as such code and ordinance may be amended in the manner provided by law.

5. The Village of Arlington Heights shall make available if said land is not otherwise available for construction of the enclosed shopping mall and office complex on immediately contiguous land an additional area of approximately 40,000 square feet, generally in accordance with Scheme "B" attached as Exhibit A. to the Bid Proposal, at a price not to exceed $8 per square foot.

6. The Village of Arlington Heights shall give its assurance of cooperation, through condemnation proceedings, if necessary, for the acquisition of the additional land hereinabove referred to, and shall give similar written assurance of cooperation in the acquisition of an additional parcel of land which may be generally described as that certain public alley extending from Campbell Street to the subject property between Dunton Avenue and Vail Avenue, together with areas a minimum of 30 feet on either side of said alley, all at a cost not to exceed an average of $8 per square foot.

7. The Village of Arlington Heights shall make available to the shopping mall portion of the complex parking spaces in the adjacent parking structure to be constructed at a ratio of no less than 3.5 automobiles per 1,000 square feet of net rentable tenant space at no effective cost to the tenants occupying said space, in addition to parking spaces at a ratio of 2.5 cars per 1,000 square feet of office space gross lease area at a cost to the proposed commercial development to be hereinafter agreed upon.

8. Upon acceptance of this bid, the Village of Arlington Heights shall grant an option at no cost to Crane Construction Company, Inc. and Development Control Corporation for a period of six months. During this period the developer will prepare such economic analyses as shall be necessary to secure funding for construction and permanent financing, and shall develop such additional plans as may be required. At the completion of the six-month option period, Crane Construction Company, Inc. and Development Control Corporation shall submit to the Village a definite agreement for completion of the entire project, including the following:

A. Provision for the delivery of the subject site by the Village free and clear, to the developer pending the execution of final funding arrangements;

B. Provision for the payment by the Village of Arlington Heights for construction of the parking structure;

C. Provision for necessary easements, vacations and extensions that may be required to guarantee access to the subject site, provision of utility services and adjacent public areas;

D. Provision for the enforcement of parking and traffic regulations and the adoption of such other ordinances as may be necessary to permit the Village to regulate the development of the subject site, the utilization of improvements, and the operation of traffic, parking and maintenance functions, all in a manner satisfactory to Crane Construction Company, Inc. and Development Control Corporation;

E. Provision for an itemized schedule for the subsequent completion of all other actions necessary to complete the development and occupancy of the proposed improvement.

9. Upon execution of the agreement set forth herein, Crane Construction Company, Inc. and Development Control Corporation shall, during a second six-month period, proceed under the agreement to prepare project design plans, specifications and estimates. Said estimates would provide the basis for determining the funding of both public and private improvements.

10. No later than 18 months after the acceptance of the bid, and upon completion of all the terms and conditions hereinabove set forth, the Village shall transfer title to the property, subject to the following terms and conditions:

A. Closing shall be within 30 days following the expiration of 18 months from the acceptance of the bid or at such other date as shall be mutually agreed upon at a time and place to be determined by the parties.

B. At least 90 days prior to closing, the Village shall provide evidence of good title contained in a letter of commitment for an owner's title insurance policy in the amount of the purchase price, showing title in the grantor, subject to standard exceptions. If the commitment discloses defects in title, the seller shall have a reasonable time within which to cure such defects. In the event such defects are not cured or if such commitment for an owner's policy is not delivered, then the purchaser may, at its option, upon written notice, declare the contract null and void, or elect to take title subject to the objections of record and deduct from the purchase price the liens or encumbrances of a definite or ascertainable amount.

C. At the election of either party and upon written notice thereof, the sale shall be completed through an escrow with the title company providing the aforesaid letter of commitment. All payments and deeds, together with this bid notice and pertinent documents, shall be deposited therein, and the cost thereof shall be borne by the seller.

11. The subject property shall remain open and available for municipal use without cost to the Village as a parking lot or other public use until construction commences.

12. A covenant running with the land shall be executed stipulating that the property herein developed and improvements thereto shall not be removed from the tax rolls, the identity or status of subsequent owners and/or users notwithstanding. Said restriction may only be waived by subsequent action of the Village Board of the Village of Arlington Heights.

13. The Village is to commission soil testing at its own expense, with borings to be spotted in accordance with the recommendations of Welton Becket and Associates, and furnish the results thereof to Crane Construction Company, Inc. and Development Control Corporation.

SECTION THREE: The provisions of the ordinance adopted on June 20, 1977, authorizing advertisement for bids for the sale of certain real estate are hereby waived to the extent that they conflict with the provisions of this ordinance, and the bid of Crane Construction Company, Inc. and Development Control Corporation is hereby determined to be the best bid.

SECTION FOUR: This ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its passage, approval and publication in the manner provided by law.

Falcon kickers don't have to be toed jobs

Rick Christopher

Byline report

Their kicking techniques are different, but equally successful.

Atlanta's field goal specialist, Nick Mike-Mayer, sidewinds his way into the ball seven yards behind the line of scrimmage, hoping to sail the pigskin through the upright.

The Falcon's sixth-year punter, John James, boots them high and far with an uncanny nose for the corners.

ANY PLAYOFF goals the Chicago Bears may have set for themselves could very well been kicked away by both Mike-Mayer and James in Atlanta's 16-10 win Sunday at Soldier Field.

Chicago's second straight loss, and fourth in its last five games, plunged the Bears' Central Division record to 2-4.

A Univ. of Florida graduate, James had to ask Atlanta for a tryout. Overlooked by the entire National Football League in the college draft, James has since become the only Falcon player to be invited to the 1976 Pro Bowl.

James, the NFL's fifth best punter with a 41.8 average, fell slightly off course with nine kicks for 349 yards against Chicago. He averaged 38.8.

SIX TIMES, the Bears were forced to start their offensive drives inside their own 15 as a result of James' coffin-corner kicks.

"James is one of the outstanding punters in the game," Atlanta coach Leeman Bennett said. "Anytime you make your opponent start inside their 20-yard line, you stand to win the ballgame."

Mike Mayer made sure of that with three-successful field goals in five attempts. Prior to the game, Mike Mayer had missed five consecutive field goals and hit only 4-of-12 in Atlanta's first five games. His job with the Falcons was on the line.

His first try missed from 36 yards in the first quarter and seemingly added extra pressure. Mike-Mayer knew different.

"I HAD NOTHING to lose," Mike-Mayer said. "Leeman told me to block everything out of my mind and concentrate on just this game.

"If I missed one, forget it. I was mentally ready even though I was wide on the first one. I hit the ball well and it was just a matter of time before I found the range," Mike-Mayer said. "I'm just glad the Falcons stuck with me as long es they did."

The first of two interceptions by cornerback Ray Easterling set up Mike-Mayer's 32-yarder in the second quarter. His longest of the season, a 44-yard boot, gave Atlanta a 6-3 halftime lead.

Easterling's second theft stopped a fourth quarter Bear march on the Atlanta 31. In both situations the Fal-

Bears find out Atlanta isn't fooling

by BOB GALLAS

The Atlanta Falcons learned Sunday that their future is now.

The Bears meanwhile learned that their "Whatever it Takes" motto may involve 1978.

Forced to play deep in their own territory most of the afternoon thanks to a leadfoot Falcons' punter, the Bears coughed up the football four times and saw each mistake turned into an Atlanta score. The result was a 16-10 Falcon win over the Bears in Soldier Field Sunday.

THE FALCONS now lead the NFC Western Division with a 4-2 record while the Bears are 2-4 in the NFC Central.

"We made mistakes and they made points off of them," summarized Bears coach Jack Pardee. Indeed, three field goals and Atlanta's only touchdown, which came with 21 seconds left to play after Bear punt returner Steve Schubert fumbled away a punt on his own 11-yard line, came via Chicago generosity.

The game was billed as a battle of the defenses as Atlanta came to town after giving up only 22 points in its first five games. The Falcons lived up to their clippings by sacking Bear quarterback Bob Avellini, who had been dropped just five times all year prior to Sunday, a total of four times for losses of 34 yards.

"They're a good football team and a good defensive club, but I didn't think we'd give them so much," said Pardee.

The Bears had three Avellini passes intercepted, lost the ball twice on fumbles and had one kick blocked. Nick Mike-Mayer, who had missed five straight coming into the game and missed his first attempt Sunday, kicked three field goals following one of the fumbles, the blocked kick and one of the interceptions.

But for all their mistakes, the Bears were still down by just six points at 9-3 with a little more than two minutes to play, and the Falcons were punting when Chicago committed perhaps their biggest faux pas of the afternoon.

Brian Baschnagel was called for defensive holding on the punt and the five-yard penalty gave the Falcons a first down at their 31 instead of the Bears taking over at the Chicago 33. The Falcons eventually punted from their own 45 and Schubert fumbled the kick.

"The guy I was blocking started falling backwards and he grabbed my shirt," said Baschnagel about his penalty. "I tried to get away and brought my arms up to try and get away and I guess they (officials) thought I was holding."

"WE'RE MAKING far too many mistakes," Baschnagel continued. "I don't know why. Maybe we're trying to be too aggressive."

Schubert's fumble set up the touchdown that put it away for Atlanta, giving them a 16-3 lead with 21 seconds to play as Haskel Stanback carried the final two yards.

On the previous punt, Schubert had let the kick roll instead of fielding the low liner and the ball rolled all the way to the Bear 18, putting them in the hole on offense. But Pardee could not fault Schubert either way.

"When the wind's blowing like that

Barrington clinches North title in win over Fremd

by ART MUGALIAN

As he has done 99 times before, Barrington football coach Bill Graham claimed victory Saturday by drawing on the vast resources of the unexpected.

Shunning the big play, Graham relied on his able field leader, quarterback Bruce Henricksen, to pick apart Fremd's defense in a decisive 13-7 win before an estimated crowd of nearly 4,000 screaming Barrington homecomers.

It was, therefore, no coincidence that Graham's 100th victory also was the one that clinched Barrington's very first Mid-Suburban North title and gave them a berth in the 5A state playoffs. The Broncos now are 7-0.

HENRICKSON COMPLETED 11 of 14 passes for 152 yards and one touchdown in a game that was played in a constant drizzle.

"I have to give a lot of credit to their quarterback," Fremd coach Joe Samojedny said. "We felt we put pretty good pressure on him, but he had the poise and composure to stand in there. He was able to make adjustments."

While Fremd was busy guarding against the Henricksen-to-Eric Shellenback bomb and the Steve Edwards sprint draw play, Barrington was pounding off-tackle and throwing to little-used receiver Ken Blackburn.

But in the end it was Henricksen who, along with the Broncos' unyielding defense, sent Fremd to its first loss in seven games.

"In the first half we were trying to hit the long ones," Graham said. "And they were giving — and I mean giving us — the 5-, 6-, and 7-yarders." IT WASN'T until the second half that Graham wised up and went to the finesse passes and straight-ahead running plays. By then it was almost too late. Fremd scored on its first offensive series, moving the ball 72 yards in nine plays, including a nifty 23-yard halfback reverse by Ron Burke for a touchdown.

"I knew we could win the game if we could stop Fremd from controlling the ball," Graham said. "At the start, I was beginning to worry about that."

But Barrington mounted a scoring drive of its own the second time it had the ball. Shellenback, who caught three passes during the game to set a Bronco single-season record of 40, returned the Viking kickoff 49 yards to the opponents' 41.

Then from the 23, Henricksen located Blackburn in the end zone for a perfectly placed TD pass. Ron Rozner kicked the extra point and the game was tied, 7-7.

"HOW ABOUT Blackburn?" marveled Graham. "In practice before the season, he showed good moves, good speed, and he caught everything in sight. Then in the game he's lose his concentration or something. He couldn't catch anything."

Henricksen went to Blackburn five times in all for 76 yards, including two key passes during Barrington's game-winning 94-yard march in the third quarter. The 16-play drive proved the Broncos are not necessarily a big-play team. Twelve of the 16 plays were running calls, flying in the face of another old wives' tale about Barrington.

Junior fullback Mike Hughes lugged the ball five times on the march, three times for key first downs and, finally, for the score when it looked like Fremd might tighten up at the goal line.

"I thought the off-tackle play was the key," Graham said. "And there were some big draw plays, too. I kind of figured they'd be keying on Edwards, and Hughes is a good runner."

DESPITE THE extra defensive pressure, Edwards gained 108 yards in 25 carries, the fourth week in a row he has gained more than 100 yards. His Fremd counterpart, Kevin Weaver, managed 75 yards in 19 attempts on the ground.

"I think this game came down to one thing," Samojedny said. "We made more crucial turnovers than they did. They didn't have any fumbles or interceptions in key situations."

Fremd fumbled twice and both times Barrington's Paul Golitz recovered, once near midfield and again at its own 10 with 5:42 left in the game.

The biggest turnover was a Mike Gavigan pass in the fourth quarter that was intercepted by Matt Mehrtens at the Bronco 14 after Fremd had moved to Barrington's 32, mainly on the running of Weaver, the league's leading rusher.

Black Hawks register 2-0 win over St. Louis

by JEFF NORDLUND

Tony Esposito turned in his first shutout of the season, as the Hawks beat the winless St. Louis Blues 2-0 at the Stadium Sunday night.

The shutout, the second of the season for the Hawks and the 60th in Esposito's career, made it a split for the weekend after the Hawks were blanked by Colorado Saturday 3-0.

The victory, evening the Hawks' record at 2-2-2, was the first in the last seven meetings with their traditional Conn Smythe rival. St. Louis, however, is off poorly this year with six losses in six outings.

The Hawks picked up against the Blues where they left off Saturday at Colorado — by collecting more penalties than shots on goal. The scoreless period was dotted with five skirmishes which added up to 29 minutes in Hawks' penalties and 24 for the Blues.

Keith Magnuson fought the first round with the Blues' Brian Sutter five minutes into the game, each collecting four minutes in penalties.

The real brawling began with just five minutes remaining in the period when the Hawks' Phil Russell squared off against Rick Bourbonnais, followed by another round between Magnuson and Sutter. All four earned five minutes major penalties.

FINALLY JERRY Butler and the Hawks' Bob Kelly ended the rowdy period by drawing major fighting raps with less than a minute to play.

ROOKIE JEAN Savard broke the Hawks' string on scoreless periods at five when he slapped in a rebound off Russell's shot from the left point at 6:34 of the second period. The power-play goal was Savard's third of the season, high for the Hawks.

The goal was the Hawks' first since the second period of Wednesday's 2-2 tie with the Buffalo Sabres. Savard also scored that goal.

Once again outshot, this time 8-6 for the period, the Hawks managed to curb their penalty-collecting. Kelly and the Blues' Len Frig dropped the gloves to earn a seven minute rest in the penalty box, and a second later Daroy Rota and the Blue's Jim Roberts were also whistled for fighting in the period's major disturbances.

Pierre Plante put the Hawks ahead 2-0 less than a minute into the third period by flipping a shot over Staniowski's shoulder. John Marks and Dale Tallon assisted on the goal, Plante's second of the season. Esposito stopped 24 Blues' shots for the game.

Fremd takes 2nd in state golf tourney

A bit of early jitters proved costly to the Fremd golf team as the Vikings finished second in the state tournament at Springfield Saturday.

After finishing Friday's first nine holes, the Vikings were 12 strokes behind New Trier East, the eventual state champs. But Fremd came back strong during the final 27 to wind up four behind New Trier East at 616-620.

"We got a little nervous and didn't putt well," said Viking coach Len Fiocca. "Once they realized this was just another day they got back in it."

FOLLOWING THE first nine, the Fremd golfers showed the confidence that helped them win conference and sectional titles.

Don Sullivan shot an overall 150 to finish in fourth place among individuals. Wheaton-Warrenville's Dave Hahn was the state medalist with a 146.

Brothers Jim and Win Bruning each shot 156s for the Vikings. Ron Stanford had a 158, Pete Mahr a 165 and Ron Ross a 170.

"We shot well, but New Trier is just a good team. They'd probably beat us six of 10 times," Fiocca said.

IN SATURDAY'S 18-hole round, played under sunny skies at Lincoln Greens, Sullivan paced the Vikings with 40-36-76 followed by Win Bruning's 39-38-77. Stanford had 39-40-79, Jim Bruning 39-41-80, Mahr 42-43-85 and Ross 44-42-86.

Friday's action was played at Oakcrest Country Club.

For two years now, the Mid-Suburban League has had a team among the top two in the state meet. Prospect won the crown last year and Fremd should have another good shot at it next fall. Everyone but Win Bruning and Ross will be returning.

One fewer unbeaten as Colts fall to New England

Don Calhoun ran two yards for one touchdown and Russ Francis snared a 31-yard pass from Steve Grogan for the other Sunday to lead the New England Patriots to a 17-3 victory over the previously undefeated Baltimore Colts.

The Patriots, now 4-2, opened the scoring on Calhoun's 2-yard run to take a 7-0 lead in the first quarter. They made it 14-0 in the third on Francis' 31-yard reception.

The Colts then made what proved to be their only score of the game at 10:22 of the third, on a 40-yard field goal by Tony Linhart. But New England came back 4:01 later when John Smith kicked an 18-yard field goal after Darrel Stingley, who caught four passes from Grogan for 116 yards, had caught a 63-yarder — the longest completion of Grogan's career — at the Baltimore eight.

GROGAN WAS 11-for-16, for 214 yards, and Calhoun and Sam Cunningham combined for 137 of New England's 169 yards rushing.

The Colts are now 5-1 and tied with Miami for the lead in the AFC East.

Elsewhere in the NFL, Oakland edged the New York Jets 28-27; Pittsburgh defeated Houston 27-10; Green Bay beat Tampa Bay 13-0; Cleveland took Buffalo 27-16; Dallas defeated Philadelphia 16-10; the New York Giants upset Washington 17-6; Miami beat Seattle 31-13; Denver took Cincinnati 24-13; St. Louis outlasted New Orleans 49-31; San Francisco defeated Detroit 28-7; and Kansas City beat San Diego 21-16.

Minnesota will take on the Rams in Los Angeles tonight in the nationally televised game.

NFL report

RICHARD TODD became the first quarterback in the NFL this season to pass for over 300 yards in one game, but Ken Stabler sparked a fourth-quarter drive to pull out a victory for the Raiders. Todd, who passed for 396 yards, threw four touchdowns in the first half to give the Jets a 27-14 lead at the end of two.

But Stabler hit Fred Biletnikoff with a 7-yard pass to pull to within six early in the fourth quarter and tied the game on a 24-yarder to Mike Siani with 7:59 left. Errol Mann made the extra-point to break the tie. Oakland is now 5-1 while the Jets are 2-4.

Terry Bradshaw eand Franco Harris overcame seven Pittsburgh fumbles to lead the Steelers, now 4-2, to a victory over the Oilers. Bradshaw passed for 224 yards and two touchdowns and Harris scored two others on 1-yard plunges, as Houston's record dropped to 3-3. Every score in the game except the Steelers' final touchdown followed a turnover.

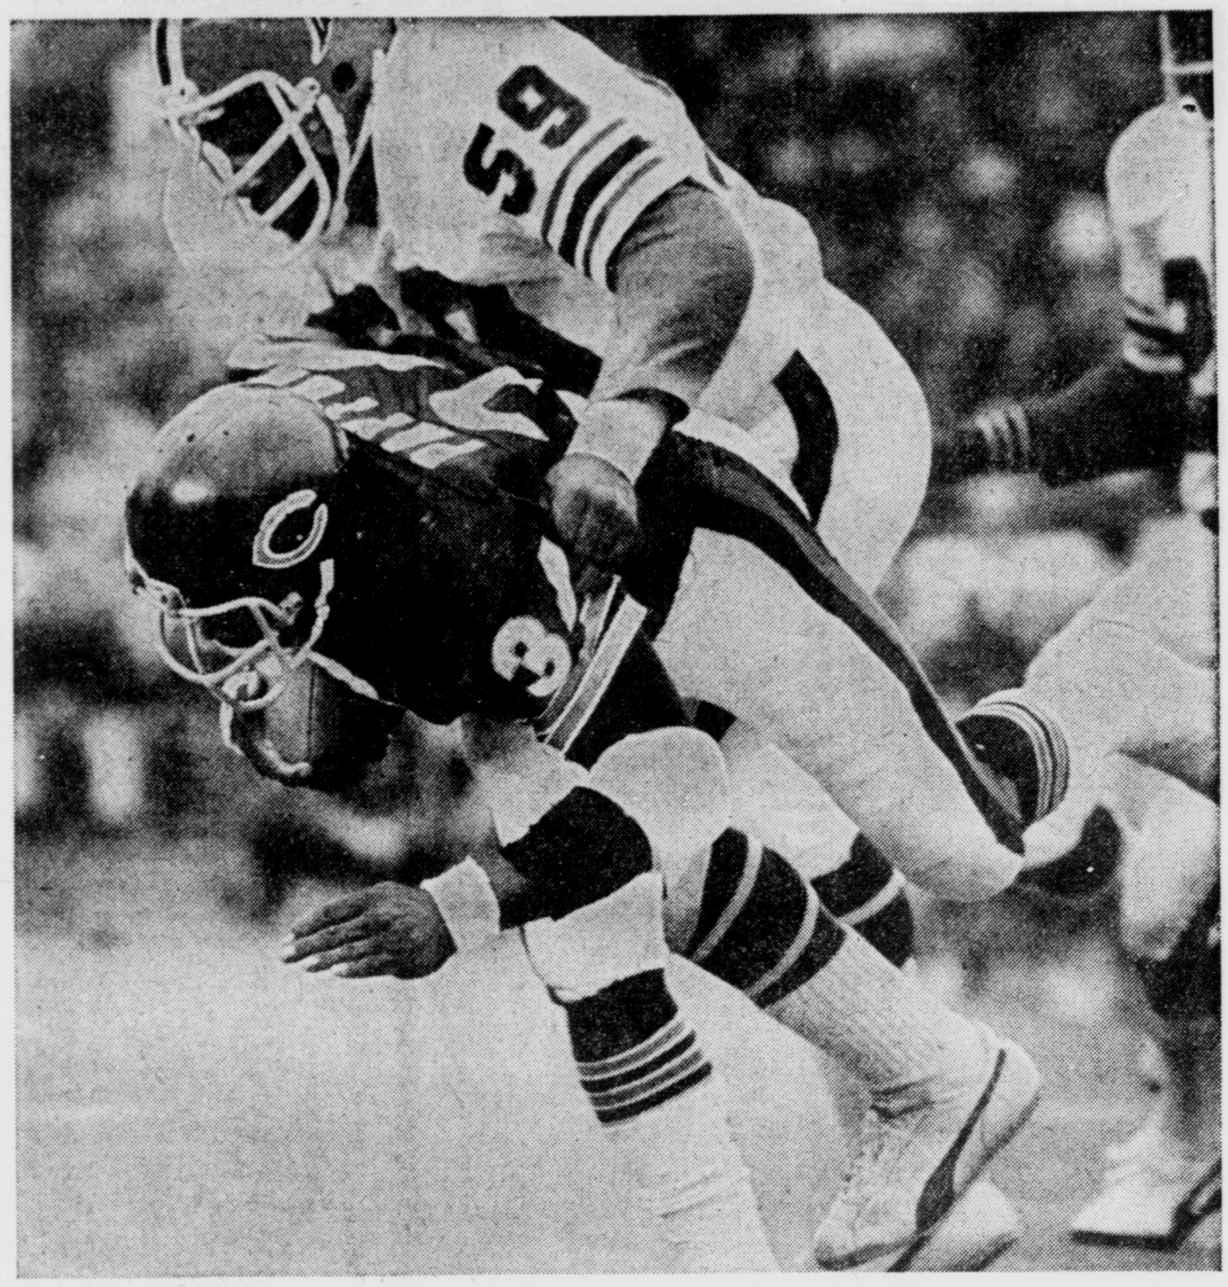
Eric Torkelson's 5-yard run and two field goals by Chester Marcol gave the Packers their second win of the season against four defeats. For the Buccaneers, now 0-6, it was the 20th straight regular season loss.

CLEO MILLER rushed for 117 yards — his first 100-yard game — and scored a touchdown to help lift the Browns past the hapless Bills, who dropped their fifth game in six decisions. Buffalo was penalized 12 times for 139 yards and lost the ball on two interceptions and two fumbles. Miller's score came on a halfback option pass from Greg Pruitt, who gained 90 yards. Cleveland is now 4-2.

The Cowboys, trailing 7-6, staged a fourth-quarter rally against the Eagles (2-4) and ran their record to 6-0 on heroics by Jay Saldi, Charlie Waters and Roger Staubach. Saldi, a reserve tight end, blocked a punt by Spike Jones and Waters retrieved the ball and raced 17 yards for a fourth-quarter touchdown. Staubach later ran for 35 yards, the longest run of his pro career, and set up an 18-yard field goal by Efren Herrera.

The Giants scored 17 second-half points and defeated the Redskins for the second time this season, giving both teams 3-3 records. With the Giants trailing 6-0 at the half, halfback Doug Kotar ran 17 yards for a third-quarter touchdown and the Giants went ahead 7-6.

Rookie quarterback Joe Pisarcik hit Jimmy Robinson with a 23-yard pass in the fourth and Joe Danelo, who made both conversions, kicked a 20-yard field goal. Billy Kilmer, who was intercepted once, was sacked six times and passed for just 61 yards.



FALLING BEAR. Walter Payton (34) is personally escorted to the synthetic turf at Soldier Field by Atlanta left linebacker Robert Penneywell. Payton was bottled up by the Falcons' defense all day, carrying the ball 24 times for 69 yards, far below his league-leading average. Atlanta defeated the Bears, 16-10 Sunday.

BOB GRIESE and Nat Moore combined for two touchdowns in a 24-point second quarter as the Dolphins boosted their record to 5-1 and the Seahawks dropped to 1-5. Two of the three second-quarter touchdowns were set up by kick returns of 38 yards by Freddie Solomon and 63 yards by Gary Davis. The third touchdown came after a pass interception by linebacker Larry Gordon and Garo Yepremian added a 29-yard field goal just before the half ended.

Craig Morton's 81-yard touchdown pass to Jack Dolbin with a minute left in the first half broke a 10-10 tie and helped lift the Broncos record to 6-0. Morton and Bengal quarterback Ken Anderson both left the game in the third quarter with knee injuries, but Morton's backup, Craig Penrose, added another touchdown in the fourth quarter, taking the Broncos 63 yards in 11 plays.

Wayne Morris ran for four touchdowns and Mel Gray caught two scoring passes in a game in which the Cardinals took an early 21-0 lead, then watched the Saints close in before breaking the game open with 21 fourth-quarter points.

The 49ers broke a five-game losing streak as Jim Plunkett, calling his own plays for the first time this season, led San Francisco to four touchdowns against the Lions. Plunkett threw the ball just 12 times, but completed eight passes, including 32-and 35-yard touchdown tosses to Gene Washington.

Safety Tim Gray scooped up a fumble and raced 16 yards for a touchdown with 2:08 left Sunday to lift the Kansas City Chiefs to their first victory of the season, a 21-16 upset over the San Diego Chargers. Gray's score was the second within 28 seconds for the Chiefs.

Falcon kickers don't have to be toed their duties con's manned their defensive line with nine players.

"THERE IS ADDED pressure on the quarterback to get the ball off quick," Easterling said. "I don't deserve the credit for the interceptions like the linebacker should. They were the ones who blitzed and forced the turnovers. I just bailed back on the throws."

"Leeman's molded a different attitude into this club since training camp," linebacker Greg Brezina said. "He's a people man and we know he's with us. Everyone is more relaxed.

"The blitz is a gamble on our parts," he added. "It usually presents a mixup with the offense on which guy to pick up.

Avellini contends the only mixup was a missed audible by wide receiver James Scott in the fourth quarter. The crowd's roar masked Avellini's audible as cornerback Rolland Lawrence stepped inside Scott at the 41. His 29-yard return to the Bear 30 set up Mike-Mayer's second wide attempt from the 47.

"THE NINE-man front didn't confuse us as much as their stunts and slant-ins," Avellini said. "They played consistently together on defense and anytime you give the opposition poor field position it just makes it that much easier.

All of James' nine punts dropped inside the Bear 25 as Chicago started only one of its 15 offensive series inside Atlanta territory.

James' start in the punting ranks came as a result of Florida's 1969 Gator Bowl win over Tennessee. Florida's only weakness in that game was its punting.

As the Florida native watched from the stands, he knew he could do better. James worked all winter during his sophomore year punting the ball between two tires. He eventually earned a spot on the Gator roster his junior season.

"I never played football during high school and my only previous experience was in sandlot ball and fraternity leagues," James said.

and you have to run up and make the catch, the chances are against you," he said. A 15 miles-per-hour crosswind off the lake also bothered Atlanta punt returner Rolland Lawrence.

THE BEAR offense, though it outgained Atlanta with 283 yards total offense to the Falcons' 217, never did get untracked and part of the reason was punter John James, who kept the Bears deep in their own territory most of the afternoon.

The Bears crossed into Atlanta territory only three times and six times had to start their drives from inside their 15-yard line.

The only Bear touchdown came after the outcome was decided. Baschnagel took the kick following the Falcons' touchdown and raced 84 yards for a touchdown with five seconds to play.

The Falcons had not yielded a touchdown in 15 straight quarters prior to Baschnagel's run, though the Atlanta defensive unit now has not given up a touchdown for 16 straight quarters.

A BOB AVELLINI pass, intercepted at the Bear 21, set up the first Atlanta field goal which tied the game, 3-3, with 10:49 left in the first quarter. Bob Thomas had kicked a 40-yard field goal earlier to give the Bears a 3-0 lead. A blocked Bob Parsons' punt at the Bear 25 set up another Atlanta field goal three minutes later to make it 6-3.

Walter Payton's fumble early in the second half set up the third field goal of the day and made it 9-3 Atlanta.

Payton was held to 69 yards in 24 carries, the first time in four games he's been kept to less than 100 yards rushing. Avellini completed only 11 of 28 passes for 165 yards.

Pardee admitted afterwards Atlanta was a "good defensive club," but apparently wasn't as impressed with the Falcons defense as he was disappointed in the Bears' offense.

"Maybe they (Atlanta defense) were just better than the players they were playing against," said Pardee.

Wheeling gets a winning year

by KEITH REINHARD

Chalk up one for the defense.

And officially chalk up a winning season for the Wheeling Wildcats. Coach Gerry Clinnin's gang took care of that by adding a further dampener to the already wet Hoffman Estates homecoming festivities with a 13-0 victory Saturday afternoon.

Wheeling's third shutout of the campaign upped their over-all record to 5-2, assuring the third-year 'Cat skipper of no worse than a 5-4 final slate. It is the first time since 1971 that the schoop has been able to finish above the .500 mark.

AND DEFENSE was the key, spiced, as usual, by the tough running of Bob Steinberg and Jeff Starke. A young Hawk contingent that continues to improve with age, threatesed but could not conquer, going down to defeat for the sixth straight time.

"Hey, Hoffman Estates isn't all that bad a ball club," Clinnin offered afterwards. "Bill (Gourley) has a spirited bunch of youngsters who make you earn every yard you get."

Clinnin employed a no-frill attack in amassing nearly 300 yards of offense and Starke and Steinberg each took the ball across the goal line once. Hoffman, meanwhile, although stymied on the ground, was able to sustain several drives on the strong right arm of quarterback Ed Hockenberry.

Late in the third quarter the Hawks started rolling at their own 35 and were not halted until they had pulled within 10 yards of paydirt.

HOCKENBERRY completed a pair of pitches to Mike Reilly to spearhead the drive. The Tom Gable and Sarke-led Wildcat defense finally dug in to protect the shutout although Wheeling was unable to improve their scoreboard showing the rest of the way.

The initial 'Cat score came on a seven-yard scamper off right tackle by Starke to cap a nine-play march. The guests had an opportunity to double their lead before halftime when quarterback Steve Majkowski ripped off a 61-yard gainer and then completed a 31-yard pass to John Joas down to the Hawk seven.

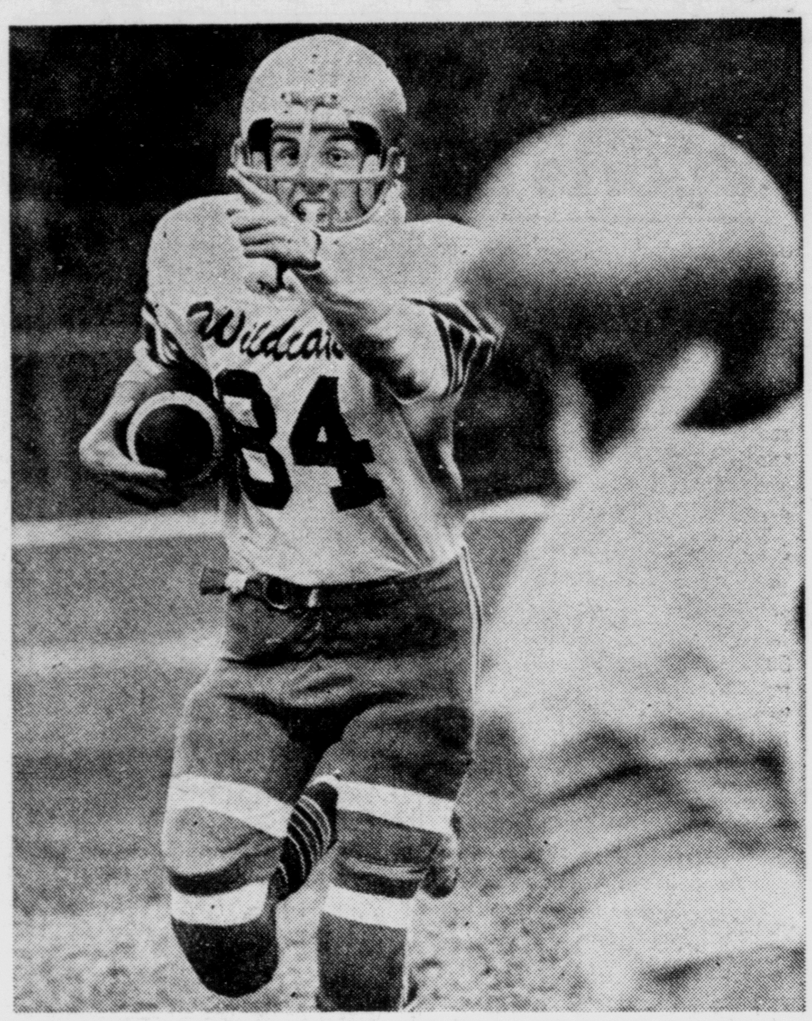
Tim ran out however before this threat could materialize.

On the opening play of the third quarter opportunity knocked again for Wheeling when they recovered a fumble during the kickoff. Three plays later, however, the 'Cats bobbled the ball and Harry Nikides scooped it up for the hosts.

Hoffman drove into enemy territory, were knocled back and punted. Wheeling took over and five plays later Steinberg skirted around right end and waltzed 40 yards for a second Wildcat touchdown.

Steinberg finished with 132 yards rushing, his best effort of the year, and Starke added nearly 100 more to boost Wheeling's total ground gaining to 246.

Hackenberry completed eight of 19 passes for the Hawks, easily his best performance of the season.



DIRECTING TRAFFIC. Wheeling's Don Grudzinski appears to be instructing his blockers with the old finger pointing method on a punt return during Saturday's Wildcat contest at Hoffman Estates. Grudzinski picked up 42 yards on the play and his team went on to post a 13-7 victory.

Forest View ball control productive

by CHRIS THOMAS

If one believes in old football axioms, then one would know that the team that scores first in a game played in the rain, mud and otherwise poor conditions will usually be the team that wins the game.

Nothing happened Saturday at Schaumburg that would tarnish the truth of that axiom. The Forest View Falcons scored first and then went on to beat Schaumburg 28-7.

No less than eight turnovers were recorded in the game, which was played before a sparse, rain-soaked crowd. It was the defense of Forest View that was on the receiving end of four of the turnovers.

"OUR DEFENSE DID a real good job for us today," said Falcon coach Fred Lussow. "It would have been nice if they could have had the shutout, but we were still happy about the win."

The defense held the Saxons to just two first downs all day and 64 total yards.

The Falcons got on the board early when they recovered a Schaumburg fumble on the Saxon 23. On the fifth play of the drive, fullback Rick Gardner ran the final two yards for the score.

The ensuing conversion created quite a controversy, but was eventually ruled good by the officials. The clock showed that slightly less than four minutes were gone in the game.

On the Saxon's next possession, a fumble again ended their drive. Forest View recovered and this time took seven plays to reach paydirt. The biggest play in the drive was a 32-yard pass to Gardner from quarterback Jeff Nelson. Nelson capped the drive by going the last two yards on the reverse option. John Fredricks again added the extra point.

AFTER THE SECOND touchdown, Forest View's Lussow began substituting feely in the game. He said, "we had a lot of kids who wanted to play. They play back-up all year and they deserved the chance to play."

After an exchange of punts, the Falcons found themselves on the Saxon 40 yard line. Lussow said, "Because of the weather conditions, we had to play straight ahead football. We were forced to run basic plays."

But basic plays often accomplish as much as razzle-dazzle on a day like Saturday. Gardner and John Miscevich alternated caries for the seven plays that it took to reach the end zone. Gardner went the final four yards for his second score of the day.

The initial drive of the second half by the Falcons saw more of the same basic football. It was a classic drive in the tradition of ball control. The Falcons used up ten minutes of the third quarter, running 17 plays en route to their final score of the day. Miscevich iced the game with his 10th carry in the drive, going four yards for the score.

THE SHUTOUT the Falcons were looking for did not materialize. Schaumburg, now 1-6, would not let themselves be counted out.

Starting on the Falcon 44, the Saxons went to the option play for their score. Quarterback Steve Martin held the ball until the right moment then pitched to Tim McGraw.

McGraw outraced the Falcon secondary to complete a 42-yard scoring play.

With the division title no longer a contest, Lussow was concerned about a letdown. Schaumburg had the potential to give us a tough time, but the players handled themselves in the right manner," he added. "It was a good game to get through and come away with the win."

Arlington, Meadows win net meets

by VIC NOVAK

Two area high schools claimed girls state district tennis team championships Saturday as Arlington won the Prospect District and Rolling Meadows captured Hoffman Estates District honors.

The top four singles and doubles finishers in the districts qualify for the state finals Thursday at the Dist. 214 high schools.

Arlington won easily at Prospect. The Cardinals' 15 points beat Prospects' 9, Maint West 8, Buffalo Grove 5, Hersey and Maine North 3 each, as well as Forest View, Fremd, Palatine and Sacred Heart 2 each.

Arlington's Laura Sanders and Kim Broderick were the doubles champions, beating Prospect's Lisa Young and Ann Hoffman, 2-6, 6-1, 6-2 for the title.

FELLOW CARDINALS Sherry Weber and Beth Klawitter defeated another Prospect team, Julie Schwen and Carla Rub for third place, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3.

The singles competition was a little different. Buffalo Grove's Lisa Smart took cahmpionship honors by stopping Maine West's Nancy Webber 6-3, 6-2.

However, it was an all-Arlington battle for the third singles spot as Arlington's Jane Haberkorn downed teammate Kris Richey, 6-2, 7-5.

At the Hoffman Estates District held at Lake Park High School's east campus, Rolling Meadows and Hoffman Estates dominated.

AFTER MEADOWS' 11 points and Hoffman's 7 came St. Edward and Lake Park with six each, Elgin 4½, Elgin Larkin 4, Elgin Academy, Conant and Elk Grove with 3 each, and Schaumburg and Fenton with 2 each.

The singles championship was an area affair. Kate Swaya of Hoffman Estates topped Jenny Jimenez of Rolling Meadows for the title, 7-5, 6-2.

"She's worked hard since last year," Hoffman Estates coach Kate Johnson said of Swaya. "She plays well when she gets her mind into it." Swaya's 18-2 over-all record would seem to indicate she's concentrating well this season.

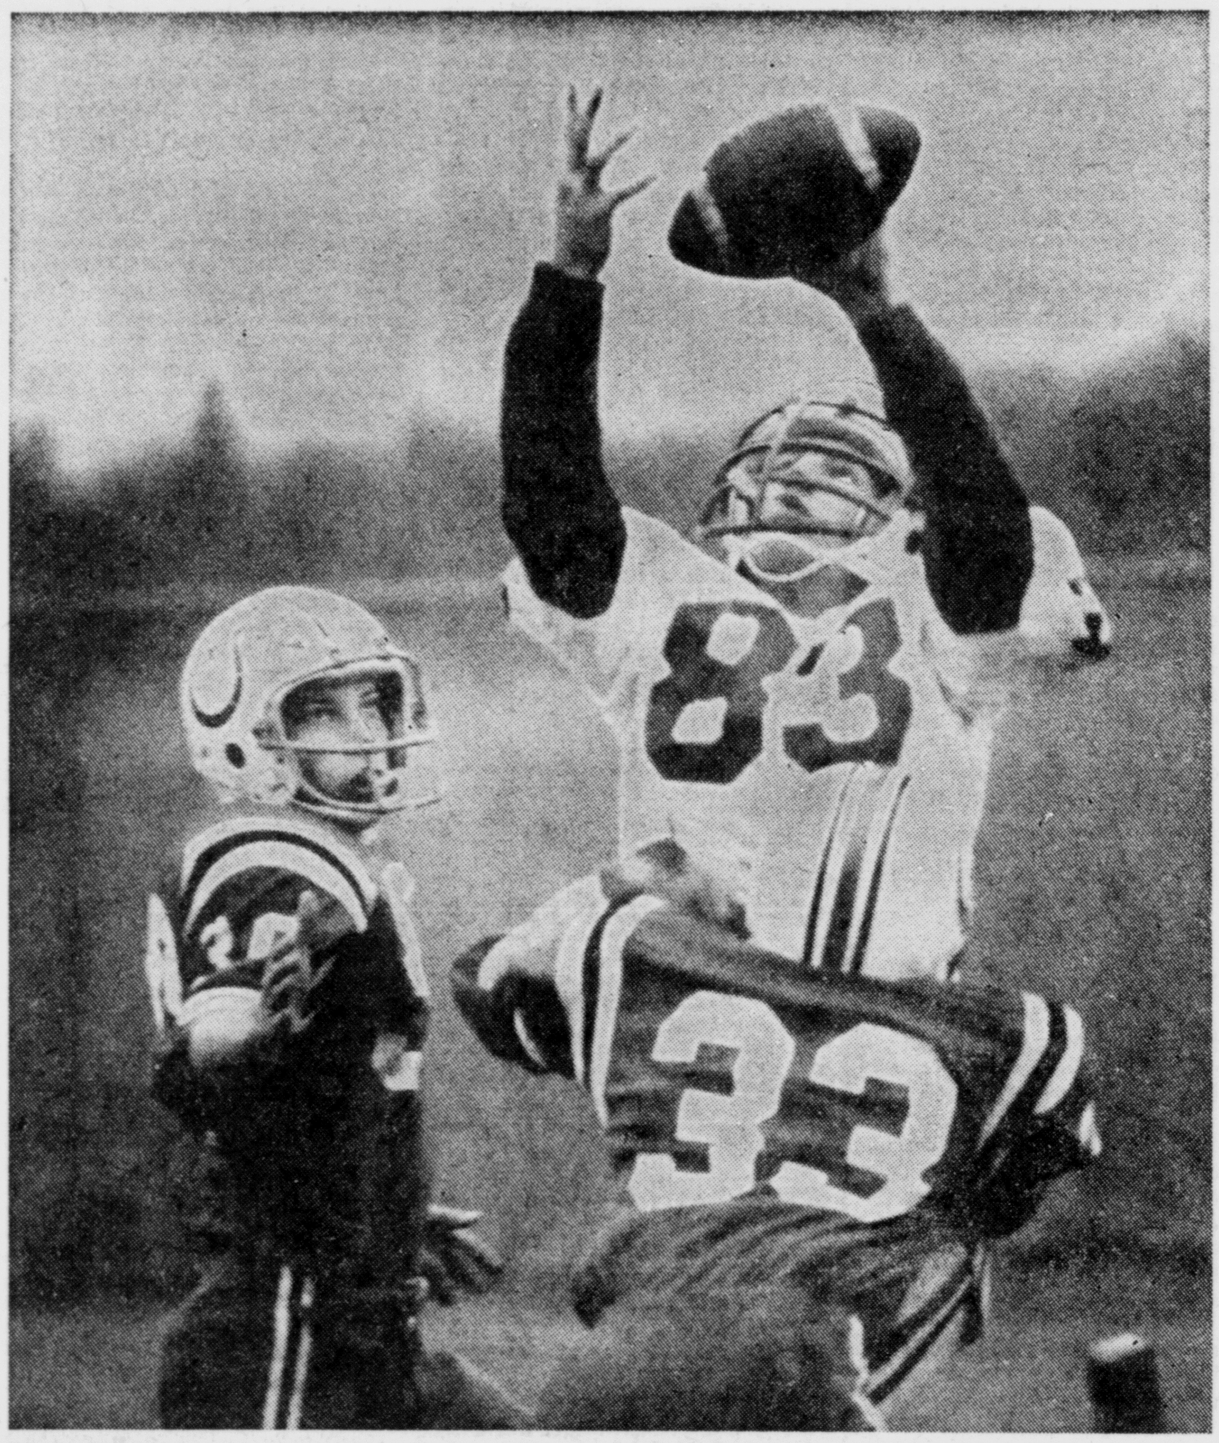
The third place singles match was won by Kay Wenzel of Elgin over Kathryn Griner of Elgin Academy, 6-3, 6-1.

Rolling Meadows came back to win the doubles championship as Mustangs Cindy Keagle and Candy Kastning beat Lake Park's Laura Smith and Janet Stevin 6-2, 6-4.

LAKE PARK teammates Pam Shannon and Penny Thompson earned third place doubles honors with a 6-3, 6-1 victory over Elk Grove's Kim Algozin and Leslie Pawlowski.

At the Glenbrook North District, Stevenson placed fourth among 10 entries with eight points. Wheeling tied for sixth place with New Trier West. Both netted two points each.

Stevenson's Sue Jaeger, the defending state singles champion, looks strong again. Her 6-3, 7-5 triumph over Lake Forest's Sue Oliver gave her the singles title.



BREAKING IN on Duane Amell's attempted grab is Barrington's Matt Mehrtens (33), who forced an incomplete pass against Fremd Saturday. Looking on is Jeff Swanson of Barrington. Broncos did a lot of forcing as they beat Fremd, 13-7, to clinch MSL North title and a 5A playoff spot.

Harper takes cross country title

Harper's cross country team captured the North Central Community College conference title with a narrow victory over Wright and Illinois Valley at South Bluff Golf Course in Oglesby, Ill. Saturday.

The top finisher for the Hawks was Jeff Brydges, who was third in 25:41 over the fast five-mile layout. Harper scored 54 points to Wright's 62 and Illinois Valley's 63. Triton was fourth, 82, and DuPage, the defending champion, was fifth, 88. Three conference schools do not compete in cross country.

Following Brydges into the chute for Harper were Mike Fischer, 9th; Jeff Siemon, 13th; Tim Blechl, 14th; Curt Long, 15th; and Mitch Reilly, 18th.

"We beat them with our fourth and fifth men," said Hawk coach Bob Nolan, who last won a conference title in 1975. "We ran really well. We were mentally up."

Fischer and Siemon ran their best races of the year for Harper. "Everybody improved their times," said Nolan.

The individual winner was Wright's Mike Pellikan in 25:30.

Harper's Sandy Young and Lynne Oswald finished first and second in the special girls' race.

RACE VICTIMS. Rescue workers carry a wounded spectator to an ambulance after the Ferrari, driven by Gilles Villenueve of Canada, crashed during the Japan Grand Prix Sunday. Villenueve escaped unhurt but two onlookers were killed and ten others injured in the mishap.

Two killed in Japan Prix; Hunt winner

GOTEMBA, Japan — James Hunt of Britain won the Japan Grand Prix Sunday, but the 17th and final leg of the world Formula 1 championship series was marred by two accidents, one of which killed a photographer and a security guard and injured 10 others.

Hunt, driving a McLaren, jumped into the lead as he started from the pole position and never relinquished it over the 73-lap, 2.71 mile Fuji International Speedway circuit at the foot of Mt. Fuji, beating out Carlos Reutemann of Argentina in a Ferrari.

The 30-year-old Brion clocked one hour, 31 minutes, 51.68 seconds with an average speed of 112.225 miles per hour.

The victory increased to three the number of Grand Prix races Hunt has won this year and placed him fifth in the final overall standings with 40 points.

Two Two Japanese — Kazuhiro Ohashi, a 25-year-old cameraman from Osaka City, and Kengo Yuasa, a 21-year-old man hired as a guard — were killed when the Ferrari driven by Giles Villeneuve of Canada and the Tyrrel of Sweden's Ronnie Peterson collided on the first corner in the sixth lap.

Ten other Japanese were injured, seven of them seriously, but Villeneuve and Peterson were unhurt. The Canadian's car was broken into pieces, sent high into the air, falling on the spectators area.

Pate easy victor in Southern Open

COLUMBUS, Ga.—Jerry Pate shot a four-under-par 66 Sunday to win the Southern Open by seven strokes, the widest victory margin of any PGA tourament winner this year.

Former Southern Open champs Johnny Miller and Mac McLendon tied for second, followed by Steve Taylor and tour rookie Phil Hancock.

Pate's 14-under-par 266 was two strokes off the tournament record set by Hubert Green in 1975 on the 6,791-yard Green Island Country Club course.

Miller and McLendon were within three strokes of Pate when Sunday's rounds began, but Pate shot the first nine in 31 and played it safe the rest of the way for his fourth victory in two years on the tour.

Rodgers wins New York Marathon

NEW YORK—Bill Rodgers won the New York Marathon through th streets of the city's five boroughs for hte second year in a row Sunday with a time of 2:11:28 — over a minute short of the record he set last year.

Second was this year's Boston Marthon winner Jerome Drayton, 32, of Ontario with a time of 2:13:52. Behind him, by four seconds, was Chris Stewart, 31, of Great Britain.

The parade-like race started at 10:30 a.m. on the Staten Island side of the Verrazano-Narrows bridge. With a blast from the starting gun, a 75 mm Howitzer, some 5,300 pairs of churning legs made their way across the harbor to Brooklyn under sunny, brisk, autumn skies.

The first woman to finish the race was 42-year-old Miki Gorman of Los Angeles who came in 30 minutes behind Rodgers. Not too far behind her was 22-year-old Kim Merrit, the second woman to finish.

Allison tops Petty in American 500

ROCKINGHAM, N.C.—Donnie Allison, whose speed was unmatched all afternoon, took a7.9-second victory over Richard Petty in Sunday's American 500 stock car race at the North Carolina Motor Speedway.

Allison, starting at the pole position in a Chevrolet, led the first 90 miles of the race and lost the lead only during pit stops en route to his second victory of the season and the ninth of his career.

The $17,135 winner's check gave him his first $100,000 season since joining the NASCAR tour. The Hueytown, Ala., driver went over the $500,000 mark in career earnings early this year.

The only real competition behind Allison was a three-way struggle between Petty, Cale Yarborough and Darrell Waltrip in a side-by-side race for second place.

Haden starting again over Namath

LOS ANGELES—For the second game in a row, young Pat Haden will be the starting Los Angeles quarterback and Joe Namath will be on the bench Monday night when the Rams host the Mirnesota Vikings.

Namath, the 13-year veteran anl refugee from the New York Jets, lcst his job after throwing four interceptions in a Monday night game at Chicago two weeks ago in a game the Bears won 24-23.

All 71,432 Coliseum tickets have been sold for Monday night's 1976 NFC title game rematch, meaning that the contest will be shown locally

In that game at Bloomington last December, the Vikings won 24-13 and they also prevailed over Los Angeles in the 1974 NFC championship contest in Minnesota 14-10.

Connors tops Rosewall for $22,000

SYDNEY, Australia — A weary Jimmy Connors outlasted ageless Ken Rosewall, 7-5, 6-4, 6-2, Sunday to win the $125,000 Australian Indoor Tennis Championships at the Hordern Pavilion.

Rosewall, nine days short of his 43rd birthday, put up a magnificant fight in a 145-minutes classic before the 23-year-old Connors eventually subdued him for the sixth time in seven meetings. Connors earned top prize money of $22,000.

A spillover crowd of 3,000 gave the two fairly tired players a standing ovation as they left the slow synthetic court.

The psych fuels major upsets

Emotion helped Gophers, Irish

College football

Minnesota and Notre Dame threw legends at their rivals Saturday — and isn't that what college football is supposed to be all about?

Even in the high-powered, semi-professional land of the Golden Gophers and the Golden Dome, the essential emotion of college football on an autumn afternoon counts for something. On Saturday, it seemed to count for everything for Minnesota and Notre Dame.

Uplifted by the presence of Bronko Nagurski, the symbol of hard-nosed football, and some 25 of the members of the great 1927 Minnesota team, Minnesota upset Michigan, the nation's top-ranked team, 16-0.

WEARING THE green jerseys, made famous by the Four Horsemen and Frank Leahy's Green Giants of yesteryear, Notre Dame, appearing on the field for the first time in 14 years in those colors, crushed Southern California, 49-19.

You don't believe old man Nagurski and the green jerseys had anything to do with the result at Minnesota? Well, you just don't know much about college football. Or about college kids.

Paul Rogind kicked field goals of 41, 37 and 32 yards and Marion Barber scored on a three-yard run to give Minnesota its victory — the first time Michigan has been shut out in 113 games.

"We played poorly and they played well," said Michigan coach Bo Schembechler. "It was the poorest offensive game we've ever played. They deserved to win."

NOTRE DAME coach Dan Devine, who ordered the green jerseys three months ago, didn't tell his players they were wearing them until a few minutes before the game. The Irish had warmed up in their customary blue jerseys.

"The locker room was going crazy," said defensive back Ted Burgmeier. "I don't know what it meant but we've always heard about the green for the Irish and the Fighting Irish in green."

Joe Montana passed for two touchdowns and ran for a pair of others to spark Notre Dame's victory. Montana passed to Ken MacAfee for scores of 13 and one yards and twice snuck one yard for tds.

In other games involving top 10 teams, No. 2 Texas downed Southern Methodist 30-14, No. 3 Alabama trounced Louisville 55-6, No. 5 Ohio State beat Northwestern 35-15, No. 6 Oklahoma defeated 18th-rated Iowa State 35-16, No. 17 Nebraska upset No. 7 Colorado 33-15 and No. 9 Penn State topped West Virginia 49-28.

EARL CAMPBELL rushed for 213 yards, including a 58-yard TD sprint on a wet field, to guide Texas past SMU. It was the most productive day in Campbell's four-year career and gave the Heisman Trophy candidate 3,598 career yards. The victory left Texas as the only unbeaten team among the nation's top 10.

Ozzie Newsome caught TD passes of 67 and 32 yards from Jeff Rutledge and Alabama turned four Lousiville fumbles into scores. Rutledge passed three times, completing all of them to Newsome, whose catches covered 124 yards.

Ohio State overcame six turnovers and defeated Northwestern on a pair of touchdowns by freshman Joel Payton. Ohio State also scored on a 5-yard run by Jeff Logan and a 24-yard scamper by Rod Gerald.

QUARTERBACK Thomas Lott ran for touchdowns of nine and six yards and scooped a shovel pass to halfback Elvis Peacock for a 39-yard touchdown to guide Oklahoma past Iowa State.

I. M. Hipp had another superb day to key Nebraska's upset of Colorado. The sophomore running back gained 172 yards on 31 carries, including TD runs of 28 and four yards.

Quarterback Chuck Fusina passed for two touchdowns and tailback Steve Geise ran for two more in a 42-point first half to lead Penn State past West Virginia. Fusina hit tight end Mickey Shuler with a 41-yard score and connected with Scott Fitzkee for a 12-yard TD.

Momentum runs out on Harper

by DON FRISKE

JOLIET—The subject on this particular evening was momentum, that catchy little word coaches and athletes like to talk about when explaining their success.

Only in this case, Harper coach John Eliasik was thinking about late in the third quarter when his Hawks had a great opportunity to take momentum by the horns and pull in a victory.

But they didn't, and Joliet won the game 26-13, Saturday night.

"THE KEY TO the whole game was when we got the ball back after that punt, but then Joliet got that interception," Eliasik said. "If we'd have scored there, we would have picked up some momentum."

The Hawk coach was referring to a series of plays that ended up with the same sad result, one that has bothered Eliasik all season. The offense failed to put together a scoring punch.

Joliet was leading 12-3 when another Harper drive came to a halt at their own 31. Pete Passaglia kicked a 41-yard punt that took a good Harper bounce.

Before it stopped rolling, however, a Joliet player touched the ball only to let Harper's Jesus Dominquez fall on it. The Joliet mistake put Harper at the Wolves' 28.

THREE PLAYS later, when momentum was on everyone's mind. that magical phenomenon quickly changed sides of the field. Jamie Terry intercepted a Hawk pass at the goal line and returned it to the Harper 49.

The play sparked the Wolves, who promptly marched toward the Harper end zone. Bill Gibson's five-yard run made the score 20-3.

Much to the credit of the Hawks, the game was made interesting again as their offense started to do some good things in the final 15 minutes. Quarterback Gaydon Brandt directed a 41-yard drive with Ricky Williams scoring from 2 yards out. That made the score 20-10 with 7:42 left to play.

After Joliet fumbled the ball away on its next possession, Brandt quickly found Neil Schmidt for an 18-yard pass play. But that was it as Passaglia came in to kick a 46-yard field goal.

HARPER NEVER got another chance as Joliet ran out the clock and added a touchdown with only 1:05 left in the game.

Momentum was a factor before the game even started. Joliet entered the contest with two straight defeats after being ranked as the top junior college in the country. Before playing Harper, the Wolves had dropped to the 12th spot.

Harper, on the other hand, was working on three consecutive shutout victories. But with 8:37 left to play in the second quarter, the possibility of No. 4 was eliminated when Joliet scored on a 15-yard pass.

It was a good example of another problem that hurt Harper. "Our pass rush was weak. We just gave them too much time to throw the ball," Eliasik said.

JOLIET FINISHED the game with 121 passing yards, but the real killer for the Hawk defense was the running of Gibson. The powerful Wolves' back picked up many of his 152 yards with Hawks hanging on.

The Wolves controlled the game statistically as they outgained the Hawks 404-159 in total yardage. Joliet also had a 19-10 advantage in first downs.

"I knew all along that they'd be better than anybody we faced," Eliasik said. "It's really hard to believe they've lost two games."

Eliasik got an early indication that the problem of scoring a touchdown would hurt his Hawks again. On the very first possession of the game, Randy Nys intercepted a Joliet pass and returned it to the Wolves' 14-yard line.

But the Hawks could gain only 2 net yards as Passaglia had to be called in for a 30-yard field goal. The boot helped the foremr Fremd player take the Hawk lead in scoring with 28 points.

Fremd runs hard, but still shares title

by ART MUGALIAN

Someday Roy Hascup will take a great-grandchild on his lap and explain, with much patience, how it was that Fremd failed to win the Mid-Suburban League boys' cross country title.

Fremd tied for the title and coach Hascup's boys had to hustle for that. At least they looked good doing it.

On a day more suitable for staying inside — and on a Crystal Lake course that would have challenged Olympians — the Fremd Vikings shattered Palatine's hopes by running away with the conference meet Saturday.

BUT BECAUSE Palatine had beaten Fremd in a dual meet two weeks ago, the Vikings had to settle for half an MSL crown — the first time since 1971 that Fremd has not taken the title outright. Then, too, it was Palatine (who else?) spoiling Fremd's fun by copping the championship.

Fremd, ranked No. 2 in one statewide poll, totaled just 37 points in Saturday's meet. Palatine had 68, Prospect 127 and Hersey 133. Hoffman Estates was fifth with 153. Palatine's finish gave the Pirates half a title.

"Our kids did the job," Hascup said after the race. "We knew that we had just had a tough race against Palatine and that we'd be tested. But we came in here with the Fremd pride and tradition — all we had to do was take a look in the Fremd trophy case."

The Vikings put five runners in the top 14 individual finishers — good for all-conference honors. Leading them was DanInbody, the individual runner-up behind conference champ Tom Johnson of Palatine.

OTHER VIKES in the top 14 were Tom Ross, 5th; Ed Martinez, 6th; sophomore Mike Warren, 10th; and Mike Ciesmier, 14th.

"Inbody ran another inspirational race," said Hascup. "I knew he was coming. Martinez ran super and Ciesmier really did a job."

It was Ciesmier, ordinarily Fremd's seventh man, who picked up the slack for Matt Filosa and Bob Ratcliffe, two Vikings who finished far back.

Ross, a junior, set the early pace, attacking Crystal Lake's hills as if they were part of his own backyard, which, for Fremd's well-traveled runners, they practically are.

"Ross did the job — we look to him as our front-runner," said Hascup. "He still came up with a fifth place."

"THAT FIRST mile was really fast," said Palatine's Johnson, who eventually coasted to victory in 15:17, a full 20 seconds ahead of Inbody on the three-mile course. "Ross really went out hard."

Johnson was 15 seconds off the course record set by Schaumburg's Arnie Jackson four years ago, but by the final third of the race there was no one around to push Johnson any closer to the record.

"At about a mile and a half I felt kind of bad," said Johnson. "But then I decided to pick it up a little to get away from (Ben) Sanchez."

Sanchez of Wheeling finished third in 15:41, followed by Hersey's Steve Johnson in 15:42.

PROSPECT'S third-place finish in the meet, coupled with their South Division title, gave the Knights sole possession of third place in the conference. Hersey and Hoffman Estates finished tied for fourth while Schaumburg, eighth in the meet, captured sixth place over-all because of a strong dual meet showing.

Tom Johnson and Jim Lancaster, who was 15th, were the only Palatine harriers who ran what they were capable of running. Chuck Elliott finished 12th, Jon Dahlgren was 18th, and Kevin Nikolai, hampered by an ankle injury, placed 22nd.

"We've just been up and down," said Palatine coach Joe Johnson. "You just never know how they'll run."

Other all-conference finishers Saturday were Arlington's Jim Lear, 7th; Buffalo Grove's Joe Schmidt, 8th; Prospect's Ken Wetendorf, 9th; Forest View's Kevin Higgins, 11th; and Hoffman's Neal Cleghorn, 13th.

"This is a really tough conference," said Fremd's Hascup, not needing to convince anyone of the fact.

Fremd's Bll Loesch was the sophomore winner, just edging Schaumburg freshman Glenn Goergen. Hoffman Estates was the sophomore champion and Forest View won the freshman-level race.

CROSS COUNTRY LIVED up to its name as Mid-Suburban runners traversed the hills and dales of Crystal Lake's Veterans' Acres Park Saturday in the conference meet. Buffalo Grove's Joe Schmidt is at the head of the line here. Fremd won the met with 37 points and shared MSL title with Palatine.

St. Viator must share running title with Marist

St. Viator will have to share the East Suburban Catholic Conference cross country title after the Lions finished second behind co-champion Marist in the league meet at Notre Dame Saturday.

Coach Joe Stehno's Lions had beaten Marist in a dual meet last Tuesday, giving them first place in the ESCC dual meet standings. But Marist came back to win Saturday's meet easily, with 26 points to Viator's 56. Third-place Notre Dame had 80 and Holy Cross 83.

John Haberkorn of Marist was the individual winner in 14:47, beating runnerup Dave Efken of St. Viator by 14 seconds. Marist runners finished in third, fourth, eighth and 10th places.

"A CO-CHAMPIONSHIP is an accomplishment," said Stehno. "I guess a piece of the cake is better than none at all."

After Efken, the Lions' next finishers were Jim Kennedy, in fifth; Phil Bayer, 13th; Steve Klimkowski, 17th; and Steve Moyer, 19th.

"I think our kids physically and mentally blew themselves out in the dual meet Tuesday," Stehno said. "We just weren't running with the same vigor we had on Tuesday.

"But the kids are already talking about next year," Stehno remarked. "That's encouraging. They're talking about how they'll stack up against Marist next year."

Stehno's squad, including varsity sohpomores Terry Johnson and Paul Kellner, are all underclassmen except Efken and Kennedy. Johnson finished 24th and Kellner 31st in the conference meet.

All that is left for the Lions now is the IHSA series, starting with the district meet at Deerfield on Saturday. Efken's goal — the state meet in Peoria — is still within reach.

Wheeling girls regain harrier title–but barely

What a difference a year makes.

In 1976, Wheeling High School won the Mid Suburban League Girls Cross Country championship easily. The Wildcats placed an astonishing five athletes among the top 10 runners in the league meet.

Saturday during the 1977 league meet at the two-mile, Veteran Acres Park course in Crystal Lake, Wheeling had a tough time retaining its conference championship.

One problem was Hoffman Estates. Coach Bob Lyons' Hawks captured the meet title with 76 points, edging second place Wheeling by one.

HOWEVER, WHEELING kept its over-all league championship because the Wildcats had a better performance than Hoffman during the dual-meet conference season. Wheeling was 9-0 while Hoffman Estates and Arlington were 7-2.

In Saturday's meet, two Wildcats placed among the top 10 runners. Chris Ratj was fifth at 12:44 and Denise Begrowicz was sixth at 12:45.

Three Hoffman runners finished in the top 10 with Tara Leiby second at 12:30, Char Warring ninth at 13:00 and Nancy Greaney at 13:01.

The meet's individual champion was Hersey's Margaret LaPorte who covered the leaf-carpeted course in 12:16.

OTHER FINISHERS were Sharon Orphanedes of Buffalo Grove third in 12:35, Joan Kelly fourth of Palatine in 12:37, Kathy Donnellan seventh of Arlington in 12:46 and Erin Geegan of Rolling Meadows eighth in 12:50.

The turning point in the race was a hazardous curve before the final chute. The Hoffman Estates runners caught up with Wheeling at the curve, passed them and never lost the lead.

"WE WERE A little disappointed in our performance," Wheeling coach Jim Nagel said. "I have to credit Hoffman. Their girls ran a very good race and wanted to win."

The Wheeling coach also talked about the league's stronger competition over-all this year.

"The total girls program is tremendously improved over a year ago," Nagel said. "They (Hoffman Estates and third-place Arlington) have improved their programs tremendously. The total cross country outlook is much stronger than a year ago."

Other conference meet team results were Arlington 90, Palatine 94, Hersey 107, Fremd 120, Buffalo Grove 159, Rolling Meadows 167, Prospect 239, and Conant 269.

The final conference finish is (1) Wheeling, (2) Hoffman Estates, (3) Arlington, (4) Palatine, (5) Hersty, (6) Fremd, (7) Buffalo Grove, (8) Rolling Meadows, (9) Prospect and (10) Conant.

Sox play waiting game as free agent date nears

by BOB GALLAS

White Sox president Bill Veeck can only sit back and wait now to see if Richie Zisk will return to the Sox next season. Negotiations between Zisk and the Sox are off until after the free agent draft next week, at which time they'll learn if they can afford to hire Zisk.

"I think he's going to test the waters (in the free agent draft)," said Veeck, whose multiyear offer to Zisk is believed to be near $1-million. "He may find out that what we're offering is more than fair, at which time we'll determine if we still want him."

While Zisk will see what he's worth on the open market, Veeck is still confident of bringing Oscar Gamble back next year.

"AS FAR AS WE know he (Gamble) will not request his free agency," said Veeck, who indicated negotiations with Gamble and his agent are still in progress.

As a six-year player Gamble would not automatically go into the draft if he is not signed as of Oct. 31. He would have to request it in writing to the league office.

Veeck would not reveal what Zisk's contract demands are, except to say the Sox and Zisk are "far apart," when it comes to the money involved. He is banking on the hope that the big contracts awarded to free agents last year may not be offered this year.

Outside of Gamble and Zisk, Jack Brohamer and pitcher Wilbur Wood would also be eligible for the draft. Brohamer has indicated he will enter the draft while Wood has not. Coming off an injury, Wood was 7-8 with a 4.99 earned run average this year in 24 appearances and clubs may not be too anxious to take on Wood's six-figure salary demands considering his age (36) and the fact that he's missed much of the past two seasons due to injury.

VEECK SAID HE is waiting to see if he signs Gamble and/or Zisk before plunging into the trade market, but that he was interested in the free agent draft, scheduled for Nov. 4.

"We signed some free agents last year. There's no reason to believe we won't again this year," Veeck said.

There are few superstars in the free agent pool, but the name of former White Sox pitcher Rich Gossage keeps rising to the top of the list. Gossage was among the top relievers in the major leagues this season after going from the Sox to the Pirates in the trade for Zisk. Veeck indicated that with righthanded relievers Clay Carroll and Lerrin LaGrow on the team, he has little interest in signing Gossage, though he didn't rule out the possibility.

"I think it would be unwise for us to concentrate on what would obviously be an expensive acquistion when there are other places we can spend our money more effectively," said Veeck.

Oswald: "South started proceedings by refusing the spade finesse. He was sure that it would fail."

Jim: "That put him in dummy for the first and last time. He had a chance to lead any suit except spades and try a finesse. As you can see they are all going to work, but only one will give him his contract."

Oswald: "South figured this out correctly and led a club toward his king. This left east with the choice of playing the ace of clubs or ducking. It didn't matter. South could only lose one heart, one diamond and one club trick and will make the other ten."

Jim: "If he tries the diamond finesse it will work, but he will still have to lose a trump."

Oswald: "There is another reason for the club lead being correct. Even if West has the ace of clubs, South might pick up a doubleton queen of trumps and still make the hand."

Ask Andy

Electricity makes coils in phone work

Andy sends a World Book Year Book to Beverly Maldaner, 9, of Lethbridge, Alberta, Canada, for her question:

HOW DOES A TELEPHONE WORK?

Back and forth across North America weaves an incredibly vast network of wires that carry messages between millions of telephones. While a great many local and long-distance calls are carried by radio systems, most of the messages travel along copper wires. About 98 out of every 100 telephone wires are bound into cables with some containing more than 4,000 individual wires.

When you speak into a telephone's mouthpiece, the sound waves of your voice go into a transmitter. An electric current then carries the sound across the street or around the world to a telephone receiver.

Behind your phone's mouthpiece is a thin, round metal disk called a diaphragm that works much like a human eardrum. When you talk, your sound waves make the diaphragm vibrate. Depending on the variations in air pressure caused by the varying tones of your voice, the diaphragm vibrates at various speeds.

A small cup filled with grains of carbon is located behind your telephone's diaphragm. As the diaphragm presses against the carbon grains, low-voltage electric current goes through them.

When you speak in a very loud voice, the sound waves press hard on the diaphragm and in turn the diaphragm presses the carbon grains tightly together. When the sound is soft on the telephone, the sound waves push lightly on the diaphragm and it in turn only puts a light pressure on the grains.

The pattern of the sound waves regulates the pressure on the diaphragm and it in turn regulates the pressure on the carbon grains. Depending on how tightly the grains are being pushed, the electric current becomes weaker or stronger as it goes out on the telephone wire.

Your telephone's receiver works much like human vocal cords. Two magnets located at the edge of a diaphragm cause it to vibrate. The action of the electric current passing through the electromagnet causes the diaphragm to vibrate according to the speaker's speech pattern. As the diaphragm moves in and out, air in front of it is pulled and pushed with the pressure setting up sound waves that are the same as the one sent into the transmitter. The sound waves go into the ear of the telephone listener and he hears the words of the speaker.

Automatic switching equipment can connect almost any two telephones anywhere on the continent. More than 99 per cent of the telephones in North America are dial operated and switched automatically. As you turn numbers on your telephone dial, clicks are sent electronically to automatically controlled centers where the connection between your telephone and the person's you are calling is completed.

Andy sends the 1977 World Book Science Year Annual to David Smith, 9, of Little Rock, Ark., for his question:

WHAT IS ECHIDNA?

When a mother echidna is getting ready to have a baby, she will lay a single egg covered with a tough skin. The egg is hatched in a fold of skin called a pouch that is located on the mother's belly. When the baby is born, he will remain in the pouch for several weeks, feeding on his mother's milk.

Also called a spiny anteater, the echidna is a mammal that is closely related to the platypus. You'll find him in New Guinea, Tasmania and Australia.

The echidna grows to be about 18 inches long and is covered with coarse hair and sharp spines. He has strong claws that are used for digging. He has a long, slender beak and a whiplike tongue used to lick up insects. He has no teeth and swallows his food whole.

Send your question on a post card to: Ask Andy in care of The Daily Herald, P.O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006, making sure to include your name, age and address. Entries are open to girls and boys 7 to 17.
